BORDEN GIRL IS FOUND

BRANDEIS' FOES RUN TO COVER

According to E. J. Twombly, a member of the Fruit and Produce Exchange, the action of that body in "disinfesting" Louis D. Brandeis, as counsel in the present New Haven hearings before Interstate Commissioner Prouty, was "all brought about by less than six men."

Mr. Twombly expresses himself regarding the Exchange's action in the following letter to Mr. Brandeis:

Protests Exchange Action.

Boston, April 25, 1913.

Mr. L. D. Brandeis,
Boston, Mass.

Dear Sir:

I feel like writing you a few words in regard to the action the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange directors took yesterday, and wish to say that I think it was a very unjust and mean thing for them to do.

The Exchange, as you probably know, is composed of about eight hundred members. I for one am very much opposed to the action which they took, and I feel that fully seven hundred of the other members feel the same way. I feel it was all brought about by less than six men.

I think you are doing a splendid service for the New England public, and I believe the great majority of people appreciate it. I believe it is a good thing for the people to know of such a surprising state of affairs as exist in the New Haven and in the Boston & Maine Railroads, and I for one hope it will be shown up in full.

You have my permission to use this letter in any way you see fit.

Yours truly,
(Signed) E. J. TWOMBLY.

B.G.—E.J.T.

Concerning the responsibility of starting the action against Mr. Brandeis there seems to be a disposition to shirk the blame.

The Boston News Bureau, which is outspoken in its friendliness to President Mellen and the New Haven road, quoted Alton E. Briggs, executive secretary of the Fruit and Produce Exchange, as follows:

Mr. Brandeis was engaged as counsel by the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange to act in the matter of unsatisfactory freight service, the date

Corned Beef and Cabbage Dinner for Harvard Club

The men of the Harvard Club of Boston are to sit down to corned beef and cabbage at the Hotel Somerset next Wednesday evening.

Instead of their usual repasts of humming birds' tongues, peacocks' eyes, caviare and such gaudy dishes, the members are invited to a New England boiled dinner.

It is figured that the menu will be a novelty to many of the club members.

The notices also say that "Great Zeus" will be given the coreacherlandes dangerous occasion by the presentation to the club of a "gift of Munificent Magnificence" by one of our great public benefactors (through a personal representative).

Members are notified that carriages should be ordered for 10 p. m. "and used if desired."

WOMAN'S BODY FOUND IN RIVER AT NEWBURY

NEWBURY, April 26.—The body of Miss Emma F. Thornton, forty-two, was found in the river near the Plum Island turnpike. Miss Thornton has been suffering from mental trouble and recently came home from a sanitarium. Medical Examiner Hurd declared she had drowned herself. Miss Thornton disappeared late Friday.

COMMON PERMIT ASKED BY I. W. W.

The I. W. W. have applied for a permit for Boston Common on the afternoon of Sunday, May 4. Colonel "Dick" Field, in the absence of the Mayor, decided to issue the permit and referred the matter to acting-Mayor Keaney. The application was made in the name of the Little Falls Defence League, which styles itself an organization for the purpose of raising funds to carry on a strike at Little Falls.

MASTERSON MADE CHILDREN TRUSTEE

Thomas F. Masterson, a cousin of Thomas F. Boyle of the Civil Service Commission, was today appointed trustee of the Children's Institutions to succeed Chairman Edward Gallagher, who resigned two weeks ago. Mr. Masterson is a shoe dealer. He lives at No. 135 Humboldt avenue. Mayor Fitzgerald selected him for the place, which carries no salary, but neglected to announce it before sailing for Panama Thursday. The appointment was forwarded to the Civil Service Commission for approval.

LADY CONNAUGHT HAS NEW RELAPSE

LONDON, April 26.—The Duchess of Connaught, wife of the Governor-General of Canada, who was operated on for appendicitis on April 10, suffered a second relapse today and her condition is causing anxiety to her family. The following bulletin was issued at Clarence House by the surgeon in attendance:

The Duchess of Connaught passed a restless night. The improvement observed during the past few days has not been maintained.

MAYOR SETS OUT ARBOR DAY TREE

Today was Arbor Day. It was officially observed by the city when Acting Mayor Thomas J. Kenny planted a baby English elm on Lyman mall of the Commonwealth avenue Beacon street. The mailing was set at a point opposite the old Parkman homestead, No. 83 Beacon street. Acting Mayor Kenny used an ordinary spade.

EASTMAN WITNESS IN SUIT

Professor Charles R. Eastman of the Carnegie Institute of Pittsburgh, testified today at the hearing of the suit brought against him and his wife by Mrs. Elizabeth W. Grogan of Cambridge for an accounting of her father's estate and $15,000 as her share of the property, that Mrs. Grogan, who is his sister-in-law, has "no sense of responsibility."

"She cannot be depended upon," added Professor Eastman, alluding to Mrs. Grogan. "She cannot be bound by anything but her mind and she changes that over night. She cannot be bound by any fixed responsibility more than two days at a time."

Professor Eastman figured in the shooting, twelve years ago, of Richard H. Grogan, Jr., husband of the woman now suing him. He was professor in the sociological department of Harvard at the time. He was acquitted on the charge of murder.

Duel "Second" Present.

The hearing is before Burton P. Grey as master. It was transferred today from the Tremont Building to the Court House at Pemberton square.

In Room No. 419 on the top landing was a family gathering. The proceedings were so informal that the men smoked. Mrs. Grogan's attorney, Hugh D. McClellan, sent out for cigars and somebody else passed around the cigarettes. Lights were struck with the consent of the women. It looked like a "smoke talk" when the smoke thickened.

At a table taking notes was Miss Beryl Grogan, daughter of Mrs. Grogan. Miss Grogan figured as a "second" in a duel fought last week on the Cambridge Parkway by William J. Rounds, Jr., and Herbert Larner. The young men quarreled over the sister of Rounds, with whom Larner keeps company.

Attorney McClellan devoted much time to a $600 note which Mrs. Grogan made out to Professor Eastman. Counsel has charged the professor with fraud in connection with the handling of the estate of his wife and her sister, Mrs. Grogan, left by their father, Alvan T. Clarke, the wealthy telescope manufacturer.

Demands Accounting.

Mrs. Grogan complains that she hasn't been getting her share and demands that Professor Eastman give a full accounting. The note for $600 was used as an illustration of Professor Eastman's alleged methods.

Professor Eastman insisted that he entered into this non-transaction to serve as a blinder and to insure her responsibility. He denied that she hadn't received anything from this note. He told how he furnished her $25 for a trip and other payments amounting to $100.

MILLIONAIRE FATHER GETS NEWS OF CHILD

Gail Borden announced at 2:30 o'clock this afternoon that his daughter Romona had been found, and that she was now on her way to the city to meet him.

Gail Borden, the Manhattan millionaire condensed milk manufacturer, who arrived in Boston today in search of his missing seventeen-year-old daughter, Miss Ramona Borden, announced to the AMERICAN at the Hotel Essex this noon that he knows where the lost heiress is and hopes to find her by nightfall.

Mr. Borden, whose fortune was founded by his father, condensed milk manufacturer, said:

"We know where Ramona is. We are going there this afternoon. I hope to reach my girl before nightfall.

"We have visited certain places in Boston where she might have been. Now I am convinced she left the city.

"It is my opinion that Mrs. White (Mrs. W. J. White of Brooklyn) came on here with Ramona, left her nieces here with a friend with whom she was intimately acquainted, then left in an automobile, doubled on her tracks and took Ramona with her.

"Before this evening, however, I hope to find them."

Mr. Borden was nearly in a state of collapse, through worry, loss of sleep and over-exertion. He had jumped over to Boston from New York on the midnight train, on news that Miss Borden in company with Mrs. White and Mrs. T. T. Backe of New York, had been in New Haven Thursday night and had pushed on to Boston yesterday.

Borden Follows Clew.

On arriving here at 7 a. m. Mr. Borden ate breakfast and conferred with detectives who had been vainly searching for the girl and the two women in Boston. It

COLD STORAGE EGG BILL IS NOW LAW; SIGNED BY FOSS

Governor Foss has signed the "cold storage egg" bill which followed the campaign of Harry P. Cassidy, the AMERICAN'S pure food expert, against the sales of cold storage eggs for fresh eggs. Mr. Cassidy's crusade resulted in hundreds of dealers and storekeepers labeling all their cold storage eggs as such. These had formerly been sold to the public as "fresh eggs."

The bill was introduced in the House by Representative Lewis R. Sullivan of Dorchester, to whom Governor Foss has presented the quill with which he signed the new law. The bill was fought bitterly by cold storage men and big egg dealers. Even after the bill had passed both branches, the opponents of the measures tried to get the Governor to veto the bill.

The new law requires that all cold storage eggs must be "plainly and conspicuously marked as such." Dishonest dealers, under the law, are liable to fines of not less than $10 nor more than $500 for each offense.

GAIL BORDEN FINDS MISSING DAUGHTER HERE

was at this time that the clew was received that, instead of being in Boston, the party had probably left the city.

This clew was followed up in the three hours' search to which Mr. Borden alluded when he mentioned having visited "certain places." He referred to homes of relatives and friends of Mrs. White in Boston.

Detectives Meet Father.

Failure to locate the girl was followed by the news that the girl and Mrs. White had slipped out of Boston and "doubled on their tracks," as Mr. Borden expressed it.

Preparations were made to follow up this double trail.

The two women and the girl—the latter said to have been registered as a "maid," were at the Hotel Taft in New Haven Thursday night and came on to Boston yesterday noon.

Mr. Borden, posted by detectives on these movements, boarded the midnight train from New York and arrived here at 7 o'clock.

He went to the Hotel Essex. Several detectives reported to the distracted father.

The mystery about Miss Borden was increased by failure to locate her at either the Hotel Touraine or Hotel Vendome, where she was reported to be staying with the two women. Miss Borden had dropped a hint in New Haven that one of these two Boston hotels was the destination of the party.

The detectives had asked at these hotels for the party without success. Now was the girl or her companions to be found at any other of the principal Boston hostelries.

In addition to the hotel tip, it had also been reported that Miss Borden had gone with the two women to the home of a Boston relative of Mrs. White.

Get a New Clew.

The detectives had been unable to locate any such Boston relative.

In the midst of this lack of progress there came a new clew that promised to take the search out of Boston and to a point about 100 miles from here.

Mr. Borden was keenly disappointed at the failure to pick up his daughter's trail as soon as he met the detectives at breakfast.

Declaring he must have his daughter safe in his arms before midnight, Mr. Borden intimated he would ask for a warrant for one of those he believes are with his daughter. These proceedings, naturally, will be of a criminal nature.

Friends of Mr. Borden who came with him from New York and were aware when the train arrived declared it was his belief that when he finds his daughter he will also find Mrs. Helen White, wife of the millionaire gum manufacturer of Chicago; Mrs. Marian Backe, a friend of Mrs. White; the latter's two nieces, and female attendants.

Just what action Mr. Borden will take against the companions of Mrs. White and he finally believes he will find the Chicago woman where his daughter is located—he alone knows. Almost prostrated by his nerve-racking experience since his beautiful daughter disappeared, he was in no condition to talk during the journey here.

READ LETTERS OF PASSION IN SUIT BY WIFE

Love letters breathing undying affection were part of the testimony introduced today at the hearing in the poor debtors' court today, when Mrs. Lulu Bruce of the Hotel Oxford began her explanation of why she is unable to pay $500 to Mrs. Rachel Harrison of No. 63 Phillips street, West End.

This amount, it is alleged, she promised to pay to settle an alienation suit brought by Mrs. Harrison.

The original suit for $5,000 was brought in December, 1911. Mrs. Harrison asked that sum as heart balm for alleged alienation of the affections of her husband, Philip, by Mrs. Bruce.

It is alleged that the suit was to be settled on the payment of $500 to Mrs. Harrison by Mrs. Bruce, but the latter failed to keep this agreement. After Judge Sisk had sworn the witnesses the examination by counsel began.

Letters Introduced.

Letters which it was claimed were written by Mrs. Bruce to Mr. Harrison and intercepted by the wife were introduced at the hearing today. An extract from one read as follows:

My Dear Love—I write you before supper and I write you after supper because you are the nearest and dearest to my heart.

Part of another read:

Philip dear,

For two days I have received no word from you and I am nearly insane. I have paced the floor since five this morning.

I will go to Pittsburg whether you want to see me or not and then I don't care whether I die or not. For God's sake send for me or come back.

Forever yours, Lulu.

An extract from another letter read:

My dear sweetheart:

I have your letter and am so happy. I have been in the depths of perdition, but now I am happy again. Love and kisses to you.

Lou.

Broke Rival's Nose.

Mrs. Harrison said she first discovered that Mrs. Bruce had taken the affections of her husband one day in the Spring of 1911 when she found Mr. Harrison and Mrs. Bruce walking on the Charles River esplanade. She attacked Mrs. Bruce and broke her nose. Lulu had to go to a hospital for several weeks for treatment after this. Later her husband went to work in Pittsburgh, Mrs. Harrison claimed she intercepted the letters.

In the suit filed by Mrs. Harrison the date of the alienation is placed at some time between May 1, 1911, and October 1, 1911. Attorney Mitchell Freeman, counsel for Mrs. Harrison, said that before the suit was brought he called on Mrs. Bruce at the Hotel Oxford and talked to her about her relations with Mr. Harrison. He said that after he left Lulu after the conversation she took poison. A doctor was called and she was saved from the effects of the drug.

Still Loves Her Husband.

"I have been married twenty-two years and I have had six children. Three are now dead. I loved my husband and love him today. We were so happy until she took him away from me. Two years ago she came into his life and from that time on he changed. I spoke to him about the change in his manner toward me and he said that this woman had a spell over him which he could not remove. She has wrecked his life. He has gone from me, and I do not know where he is."

During the recital of this story Mrs. Harrison shook with emotion. Big tears welled up in her eyes and rolled down her cheeks.

Mrs. Bruce testified she was married in 1902 to Waldo Alva Bruce, a glazier. She removed her wedding ring to show the attorneys the date of her marriage engraved inside it. At this point the hearing was adjourned until Monday. Harrison was a designer of women's garments.

OPENS ARTERY; DIES AT HOSPITAL

Peter Huck, aged fifty, of No. 24 Leon street, Roxbury, committed suicide by slashing an artery in his right wrist with a razor. The blood was rushing from his wrist when Huck was discovered by his wife. She called neighbors and had him taken to the City Hospital. There the artery was tied and the wound closed, but the loss of blood had been so great that Huck died two hours afterward.

MISS ALYS MEYER, daughter of the Secretary of the Navy under Taft, who married Lieutenant Rogers of the navy today at Washington.

In spite of the fact that Miss Meyer has been known as 'Alys,' she was married today as 'Alice,' the church insisting on her baptismal name. She is popular in Boston and Washington and North Shore society.

ALYS MEYER IS NAVAL MAN'S BRIDE TODAY

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Miss Alys Appleton Meyer, the second daughter of former Secretary of the Navy and Mrs. George Von L. Meyer, of Boston and Washington, became the bride in St. John's Episcopal Church at noon today of Lieutenant Raymond Cristopher Rogers, U. S. N., son of Colonel and Mrs. Alexander Rogers.

Leaders of society in two administrations witnessed the ceremony. The Rev. Roland Cotton Smith officiated.

It was while the bride was a house guest of Miss Helen Taft at the White House, where the groom was stationed as an aide to the President that their romance began.

Miss Taft was one of the bridesmaids today. The others were Miss Ruth Appleton of New York, a cousin of the bride, Miss Christine Hunnewell of Boston, Miss Martha Cook of New York, and the Misses Katherine Jennings and Dorothy Williams of Washington.

Donald Rogers, brother of the groom, acted as best man, and another brother, Alexander Rogers, was an usher. Other ushers were Clarence Hay, Simon Bonnevier, Lieutenant David W. Bagley, U. S. N., and Major James A. Logan, U. S. A.

A reception followed the ceremony at the home of the bride's parents in Scott circle.

Miss Meyer was married under the name of "Alice," despite she announced some years ago she preferred to be known as "Alys." Society adopted the name. But phonetic spelling did not go with the church authorities and she had to be married as Alice, even should she start in tonight calling herself "Alys."

WILEY EXPLAINS WHY HE BROKE IN ON BRANDEIS

I. H. Wiley, a business man of No. 77 Portland street, said today that he was the man who had interrupted Louis D. Brandeis at the Economic Club dinner at Filene's restaurant last night, and that his object in shouting to Mr. Brandeis was that he wants him to have a change of heart. Mr. Wiley was hissed by the audience. Mr. Wiley said today:

Mr. Wiley said:

This is what I said at the dinner of the Economic Club:

"It takes an ounce of brains to criticise a railroad, but it demands many pounds of judgment to run one. My policy is constructive. How can anyone say that he is working for the people when he is in the act of destroying, not building up?

They wouldn't let me finish my speech last night. I could have beaten Brandeis to a frazzle.

What's the use of going around talking about the merger, going even to the Congressional committees, as I understand, and weeping that the merger is such a bad thing.

Is this the thing to be done?

To go around showing a sore without attempting to heal it?

Suppose the physicians went around complaining about diseases without helping to wipe them out?

So I say, let's help the roads along. Don't keep punctuting them.

If they have made mistakes, as they undoubtedly have, let's keep still and heal up the sore.

I tried to give some ointment at this dinner for the sore, but they wouldn't have it.

I was not mad when I left the room after my speech; I was just as cold as the ocean in Winter.

Only I'm tired with others of hearings wails about the railroads.

5,000 JOIN IN BIG PARADE TO MILFORD GRAVE

MILFORD, April 26. — Over 5,000 persons, including sympathizers from outside towns, joined today in the funeral march to the grave of Emilio Bacchiochi, the strike picket who was killed last Tuesday morning. The police promised that, if order was maintained, there would be no interference with the strikers or their friends.

Visiting delegations who came to attend the funeral of the slain man arrived in large numbers from Boston, Providence, Springfield, Holyoke, Marlboro and other towns and cities which have a considerable population of persons of Italian birth or descent.

At two o'clock today practically the entire body of strikers and their friends assembled in and about the Church of the Sacred Heart of Jesus, where the Rev. Father Bruno Ferrarca conducted the funeral service.

Later, headed by two bands, the long procession started for St. Mary's Cemetery, where the interment took place.

LOS ANGELES JURY CALLS POLICE IN SLAVE GRAFT HUNT

LOS ANGELES, Cal., Nov. 26.—The white slave investigation has taken a new turn through suggestions that certain reports enjoy police protection. Police officials and private detectives have been summoned before the Grand Jury.

George H. Bixby, the Long Beach banker, son of the factors causing the investigation, is still missing. Katherine Phillips, who really started the probe after her arrest on the charge of blackmailing Bixby, cannot be found.

'PHONE BOARD IS COMPLETED; ALL IS HARMONY

The make-up of the new joint adjustment board, which is to handle all grievances of the Boston telephone operators, was completed amicably at a meeting today between F. K. Hall, vice-president of the New England Telephone Company, and the three girls elected by the operators' union as the operators' representatives to the board.

This removes the final possibility of a hitch in perfecting the settlement of the strike which was recently threatened.

The only fear was that a clash might arise over the company's contention that non-union, as well as union operators were entitled to be the operator's representatives. The union girls said that only union members could serve for the operators.

The union members bel their election last Tuesday in regulation voting style, with nine candidates nominated. Those elected by the union were:

The Union Representatives.

Miss Anaie Malloy, president of the union; Miss Mary C. Meagher and Miss Mary F. Murray.

That same day the company posted notices for "all members of t ehopeating from eligible to vote" to cast their ballots for the operators' representatives. None of the union members voted at the company polls; only at union headquarters. The non-union operators, only a small proportion of the whole, cast their ballots at the exchanges.

Miss Malloy, Miss Meagher and Miss Murray went to the company offices at Fort Hill square today to announce the result of the union election and to hear the result of the non-union balloting, which had not been announced.

First Meeting Next Week.

They were met by Mr. Hall in his private office. The girls stated the union choices for the board. Mr. Hall asked for the figures. These were given. He compared the union figures with a list he had and announced with a smile that the union candidates had received majorities of the total vote.

It was reported that the union candidates led the non-union list, also.

Mr. Hall announced the company representatives on the board, as follows:

Vice-President F. K. Hall.

Traffic Engineer B. J. Bowen.

District Traffic Superintendent J. Birdsell.

The board will hold its first meeting early next week, when it will be ready to hear any grievances.

VINCENT ASTOR NOW IN NEWPORT

NEWPORT, April 26.—Vincent Astor, accompanied by Herman Oelrichs, arrived at the Astor estate on board the steam yacht Nous. The yacht was anchored off the New York Yacht Club station. Later Mr. Astor and his guest came ashore and took a drive about town, visiting Beechwood, the former Summer home of Mrs. Astor. Mrs. Willing Astor, and where she and Vincent Astor will live this Summer. Mr. Astor and Mr. Oelrichs will remain in Newport over Sunday.

Students Flee $75,000 Blaze at Amherst

AMHERST, April 26.—Fifty persons, including several women and a dozen Amherst College students, fled to the street in a panic, early today when the Hunt Block in South Pleasant street was destroyed by fire with a loss of $75,000.

The occupants abandoned the building in their night clothes and saved practically nothing. Many had narrow escapes and several were saved from being trapped by the flames by the heroism of Chief of Police Graves and Patrolman Thomas Dillon, who discovered the fire.

Help was summoned from Northampton but by the time the tired horses covered the eight miles over the road the fourstory brick block was in ruins. The firemen were greatly handicapped in fighting the fire owing to the lack of pressure. The streams hardly reached the top story of the block and the firemen were forced to throw stones threw the windows to make way for the water.

FEDERAL QUEST FOR GIRL, 9, KIDNAPED

CHICAGO, April 26.—Dr. W. A. Winters of Newcastle, Indiana, has appealed to the Federal authorities to institute a country-wide quest for his daughter Hardenine, nine, believed kidnaped March 20.

Wilson Has a Rest; Out on Potomac on the Yacht Sylph

WASHINGTON, April 26.—On the advice of his physician, Dr. Carey Grayson, U. S. N., President Wilson threw aside the cares of state today and accompanied by Miss Eleanor Wilson set sail down the Potomac River on board the yacht Sylph. They will return tomorrow night. The destination of the President is unknown to White House attaches. For the next thirty-six hours he will be entirely out of touch with the land except through the wireless on the Sylph.

Dr. Grayson predicted that his patient will return to Washington without the least trace of the intestinal troubles which has influenced the chief executive for the past week.

Oil Trust Wins the Contract for Oiling Hub Roads

The Oil Trust has won out in the competitive bidding for road oil to water Boston streets, and Commissioner of Public Works Rourke has awarded them the contract for 200,000 gallons of emulsion oil and 200,000 gallons of emulsified road oil.

The price which the city will pay the Standard Oil Company is 6¾ cents per gallon for emulsion oil and the same price for the emulsified oil.

The Standard Oil was the only bidder for both grades of oil, and was 3¾ cents per gallon lower than the Headley Good Roads Company, which bid 10 cents for the emulsified oil, and was three-fifths of a cent higher than the Indian Refining Company.

AGED "LORD" GETS 6 MONTHS FOR LARCENY

Charles F. Richards, alias "Lord Ashburton," known on three continents as "the world's greatest criminal," was sentenced to six months in the House of Correction at Deer Island by Judge Albert E. Avery in the Quincy District Court on a charge of larceny. He appealed and was held in $500 for the Superior Court.

Richards, or "Lord Ashburton," as he is best known, raised a thirteen-months' sentence in the House of Correction at Deer Island yesterday. He was arrested on the pier last night just as he stepped from the Mount Vernon, by Captain Daniel K. McKay of the Quincy police.

PHONE GIRLS WILL DINE MISS O'CONNOR

An echo of the recent strike situation among the telephone girls was heard today when the operators in ten exchanges started preparations to tender to Miss Julia S. O'Connor a complimentary dinner as a mark of appreciation for her services on their former arbitration committee. This is in addition to the presentation of a beautiful floral tribute at the union meeting last night.

SCHWAB PAID $1,250,000 FOR FORE RIVER CO.

Details of the sale of the Fore River Shipbuilding Company to the Bethlehem Steel Company, controlled by Charles M. Schwab, exclusively announced in yesterday's AMERICAN, became known today.

The price was: about $1,250,000, according to the Boston News Bureau. This will work out under $40 a share for the preferred stock, which is entitled to $100 a share in liquidation. The common stock of $2,400,000 receives nothing.

The purchase of the Fore River Company by Schwab is looked upon by local business men as promising great advancement to the manufacturing interests of the port of Boston.

Mr. Schwab represents a capital of $50,000,000. He is young, energetic and aids to push shipbuilding at the works. He is understood to have ambitious plans for the Quincy plant.

Business men considering the important plans considered for the development of the port of Boston interpret the interest of a powerful corporation like the Bethlehem Steel as one of the best things which could happen to Boston and New England.

It is understood that Rear Admiral Francis T. Bowles, U. S. N., retired, will remain at the head of the company. Admiral Bowles is considered by the purchasers, it is understood, to have managed the property well.

The poor outlook for dividends is believed to have been the cause of the sale.

The Fore River company has twenty-three boats under construction, involving between $22,000,000 and $23,000,000, sufficient to insure eighteen months' continuous work.

Gray Hair Recipe

This Simple Recipe, Made Up at Your Home, Solves the Problem.

A good many men and women go through life handicapped by gray hair, believing that it cannot be darkened so as to escape detection among their friends. This is altogether wrong. Of course the cheap dyes and stains are often unsatisfactory, but here is a simple little formula, which you can put up at home for very little cost, that will be found to meet every requirement: To 7 oz. of water add one small box of Barbo Compound, 1 ounce of bay rum and ¼ ounce of glycerine, and you'll have a delightfully good preparation for gradually darkening gray hair or beards, as well as a good remedy for dandruff and other scalp disorders. It is to be applied once a week until the hair is darkened, then once every two weeks. It has none of the objectionable qualities of ordinary dyes and stains—stickiness, rubbing off, and such defects—and is genuinely reliable in every way.

ON TIME

(From the Boston News Bureau. April 18, 1913.)

Steady improvement is being made in promptness of their passenger traffic movement by the New England Lines, both north and south. At the South Station the time-record for the fast trains from New York is especially interesting. With the Bay State (which, by the way, enjoys the reputation for the best record of any "limited" in the United States), there has not during the current month been a minute's delay in bringing this train into the South Station. In the case of the Merchants train—the entire equipment of which is now all steel—there have been only two April delays, of one and four minutes, in its arrival at Boston.

Since February 1 tickets for the New Haven's "limited" service between Boston and New York—consisting of the Bay State, Knickerbocker and Merchants, three daily trains each way—have carried a provision for a $1 price-rebate for a delay of over 30 minutes in reaching destination. During this period, however, there have been but 10 "excess" delays, seven of which were in February, and the trains for the most part have been kept practically on time. During the present month, for instance, their delay in arrival at Boston has aggregated but 23 minutes, consisting of seven, eleven, one and four minutes respectively.

THREE IMPORTANT ARTICLES IN TOMORROW'S SUNDAY AMERICAN

WOMEN WANT HAND IN MAKING OF THE TARIFF

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Suffragists for the second time in a week, visited the Capitol, to argue why women should have the elective franchise on the same plane as men through the adoption of a constitutional amendment.

Chief among those present to plead for universal suffrage was Mrs. Anna Howard Shaw, president of the National American Woman's Suffrage Association. She was ably seconded by Miss Helen Varick Boswell, president of the Woman's National Republican Association; Mrs. Harvey W. Wiley, wife of the pure food advocate; Mrs. William Kent, wife of the Representative from California, and several others.

Two Senators, Sanforth of Colorado and Brady of Idaho, and the wives of Senators La Follette of Wisconsin and Sutherland of Utah also were ready to advance arguments for the cause. Representative Bryan of Washington State also was among the pleaders.

Mrs. La Follette argued that women are as vitally interested in tariff legislation as the men and declared that every important piece of legislation before Congress in the last twenty-five years had affected women equally.

"If the tariff in any way affects the price we pay for what we eat and wear, if the trusts and combinations have anything to do with the high cost of living, women should understand about it," said Mrs. La Follette, "If the prices of the great staples like beef, sugar, oil, cotton, woolens, are fixed by monopoly, if the tariff affects the cost of the children's food and clothes, the only radical way to right the wrong is through national legislation.

"Women do the buying. Ninety per cent. of ten billion dollars paid out annually in the United States for food, clothing and shelter is spent by women."

Mrs. La Follette maintained that the real issue in the suffrage struggle was in the interest of the home and of society.

Miss Helen Varick Boswell argued that a federal law would be the quickest and surest way to procure equal suffrage, and Mrs. Kent said that woman suffrage had worked welfare in California.

FLOOD SUFFERERS AIDED BY CHURCH

The AMERICAN acknowledges the receipt today of $14.63 from C. A. Bain, representing the First Presbyterian Church of Hyde Park, to be added to the Humanity Tax used in behalf of the flood sufferers of the Middle West. The money has been forwarded to the proper authorities.

POSLAM MAKES THOUSANDS LOOK WELL

Many who have given up hope of ever being rid of some distressing skin disease—and who have later experienced complete cure through Poslam—look upon its accomplishment as nothing short of miraculous.

All skin diseases, including eczema, acne, tetter, salt rheum, itch, etc., are quickly eradicated by Poslam. Itching is stopped at once. Common troubles, such as pimples, red noses, rashes, etc., respond so readily that overnight treatment is often sufficient. If you need the healing effects of Poslam, try it now.

POSLAM SOAP used daily for toilet and bath will keep the skin in healthy condition, and improve its color and texture. Purest and best that money can buy.

All druggists sell Poslam (price 50 cents) and Poslam Soap (price, 25 cents). For free sample write to the Emergency Laboratories, 32 West 25th Street, New York City.

Tobacco Habit Easily Conquered

A well-known New Yorker who has had wide experience, has written a book telling how the tobacco or snuff habit may be easily banished in three days without any return of the craving.

The health improves wonderfully after the nicotine poison is out of the system. Appetite returns, sleep, clear eyes, normal appetite, good digestion, manly vigor, strong memory and a general gain in efficiency are among the many reported. No more need of that nervous feeling; no more need of pipe, cigar, cigarette or chewing tobacco to pacify a morbid desire. The author, Edw. J. Woods, 534 Sixth Ave., 205-B, New York City, will send his book free on application, to anyone who writes to him.

GABY DESLYS, who is reported about to enter a French convent. She sailed today, soon after the report that ex-King Manuel of Portugal is engaged to wed, and Broadway is sad.

GABY GOES; WE MAY NE'ER SEE HER HERE AGAIN

NEW YORK, April 26.—Gaby Deslys has closed her season in "The Honeymoon Express" at the Winter Garden, and today she sails away.

But if that were all, her Broadway admirers would only need to sign and breathe an au revoir.

But no, that is not all.

Gaby is not coming back.

Just as true as you hear it, the Parisienne is going away from here for aye and a day.

And, just whether it was the cabled announcement that King Manuel has taken himself a fiancee or something else again, no one knows. It must have been some serious attachment.

Gaby is going into seclusion in a French convent. At least, that was what the wind whispered on Broadway. There was much sorrow on the great white way. Good bye, Gaby!

ELIZABETH GURLEY FLYNN IS ARRESTED

PATTERSON, N. J., April 26.—County Constables Kearney and Jewett today arrested Carlo Tresca and Elizabeth Gurley Flynn, Industrial Workers of the World leaders, indicted here yesterday on charges of inciting to riot. They were both lodged in the county jail after the constables and a number of special deputies had fought off a crowd of their followers who tried to rescue them. All railway stations and other approaches to the city are being guarded by deputies seeking to arrest William D. Haywood who was indicted for disorderly conduct.

Patrick Quinlan, the New York organizer, was later arrested while addressing 2,000 people. Two constables walked to the platform and told Quinlan he was under arrest. Immediately there was an uproar, and for a time it seemed violence would be done the officers. However, Quinlan quieted the mob after the constables promised they would permit Quinlan to finish his speech. Then he walked to the station house with the officers, while a hooting, howling crowd trailed in the rear.

Henry Tries an I. W. W. sympathizer, went security for the $3,000 bail for Miss Flynn and the $5,000 for Tresca. Both were immediately liberated. Quinlan, however, was not bailed out. His bond is $5,000.

MANY CLUBBED IN STRIKE RIOT AT EVERETT

Men were clubbed, stores were thrown and a general fight resulting in a riot broke out today when fifty strikers attempted to intercept workmen from entering the Cochrane Chemical Works in Everett.

Patrolman Ralph L. Wallace of Everett was hit by a stone which opened a gash several inches long in his head. It required five stitches to bind the wound.

A squad of Everett and Boston police, under Sergeant Card of Everett, charged the strikers and dispersed them. There were no arrests.

As the result of rioting last night outside the Chemical works, Samuel Ferris of No. 30 Ferris street, Everett, a loyal workman, will be arraigned in the Everett Court today on the charge of carrying a concealed weapon.

The police charge that Ferris, when approached by a strike picket, drew a revolver and threatened a crowd of strikers. He was in the midst of a crowd of strikers threatening to lynch him when rescued by the police.

START RAILROAD VALUATION WORK FIRST OF MONTH

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The Interstate Commerce Commission has made plans for starting the work of making the physical valuation of railroads on May 1. A board of engineers, the personnel of which will be announced later, will assist the commission in formulating the plans under which the work will be done. The board will be composed of civil engineers who have been selected from separate localities and from different lines of work and environment.

In addition the commission will elect an advisory board of three members composed of men fully competent to advise on the many questions which are expected to be presented to the commission as the work progresses.

Among those who have offered cups are Dorothy Forbes, Mrs. J. De Forest Danielson, Miss Alice Sargent, Miss C. A. Clark, Miss E. M. Greenleaf, John Maurice Dimond, Samuel D. Parker, Dr. Samuel Hopkins, Hallum Moriss, John P. Bowditch, Freeman O. Emerson, George Amory, Maurice Dimond and W. J. McDonald.

CARDINAL OFF FOR VISIT TO ROME TODAY

Cardinal O'Connell sailed for Naples and Rome on the Canopic this afternoon Accompanying the Cardinal was the Right Rev. Mgr. M. J. Splaine, rector of the Cathedral of the Holy Cross.

Passengers on the same steamer were Pio de Saca, director of the choir of the Cathedral of the Holy Cross, and Dr. J. R. Slattery of St. Elizabeth's Hospital staff.

The purpose of the Cardinal's visit is said to be a desire to attend personally to some details of the work being done in his titular church, San Clemente, later participating in the celebration of the anniversary of the Edict of Constantine.

About a year ago Cardinal O'Connell suggested a system in his titular church designed to drain off water in the cellar of the ancient basilica, the work to be paid for from a donation made by some Bostonians. The work is now in progress.

Cincinnati Women Ask Governor Foss to Help Pomeroy

A letter to the Boston Women's Club asking clubwomen to join the Twentieth Century Club of Cincinnati in an attempt to aid Josse Pomeroy has been sent by Mrs. Dora Easton, president of the Ohio organization.

The club also petitions Governor Foss to have Pomeroy given more privileges, saying he is now "a caged beast."

"We feel that Pomeroy is being treated with fifteenth century methods," writes Mrs. Easton. "We do not feel he should be liberated immediately, but that his abode should be a more comfortable place than a fifteen-foot cell. If he were given tools, he might develop into a helpful, normal man."

WOMAN FATALLY BURNED IN WOBURN

Mrs. Mary A. Maguire, fifty-five years of age, widow of James A. Maguire of Woburn, was probably fatally burned while setting fire to a pile of rubbish in the yard of her home at No. 4 Vining's Court, Woburn. The woman's dress was burned from her body. She was taken to Cleary Memorial Hospital where it was said she was not expected to live.

MORE STORES SOLD OUT TO RAYMOND

"It's an ill wind that blows nobody good." And no matter how much it may help our business if the number of failures increase, as they have recently, all those politicians who are doing so much to paralyze the business of the country will have to be put away on some island where they can be kept for at least 20 years, while men who do the work and pay the bills may know how to proceed in business without the continual interference of this ever-increasing mob of howling politicians and the lawyers who help them "get by." Our fortunate state of affairs in one Boot and Shoe Store, in business only six months; one Men's Furnishing Goods Store, and a stock of Smallwares, etc., all bought this week and ready for sale by the time you see this notice. POWERS ORDER NICHOLAS TO QUIT SCUTARI

VIENNA, April 26.—The Austrian chancellory today received word that the Ambassadorial high court, now sitting in the foreign office in London, had sent a joint note, signed by all the big European powers but Russia, to the Montenegrin government, demanding the evacuation of Scutari by the Montenegrin army. The note virtually amounts to an ultimatum, has been handed to the Montenegrin government by the various diplomatic envoys in Cettinje.

Russia is apparently determined to make a material show of her friendship for the Slavs. The Russian government has made a number of gifts of guns and ammunition to Montenegro.

It is believed here that Montenegro will bow to the demand of the powers, despite the backing of the Balkan League and the friendship of Russia, although a Cettinji dispatch stated that King Nicholas had proclaimed Scutari the future Montenegrin capital.

Nicholas Enters Scutari.

CETTINJE, Montenegro, April 26.—King Nicholas of Montenegro, accompanied by Crown Prince Danilo, officers of the staff and members of the Montenegrin government, entered Scutari in state today. Montenegrin troops lined the roadways and cheers rolled along the line as the plucky monarch rode by. Nicholas seized his troops and answered their salutations with more familiarity than is generally shown by a victorious monarch.

Later a royal proclamation, signed by Nicholas, proclaimed Scutari the future residence of Montenegrin kings. At the same time the appointments of General Vukovics to be military governor and M. Plamenata to be civil governor were confirmed.

REFUSE QUINCY CIRCUS LICENSE MEMORIAL DAY

Mayor Stone of Quincy issued notice today that he had refused a license to appear in Quincy on Memorial Day to Downing & Wheeling's circus. The performance has been extensively advertised. Mayor Stone believes that Memorial Day should be observed by ceremonies in memory of the dead, and that young people are being led too far away from the old idea of venerating heroes.

U. S. & ORIENT CO. IS TO LIQUIDATE

NEW YORK, April 26.—The United States & Orient Trust Company, a $2,000,000 corporation, with its main offices in this city and branches in many Western cities, will go into voluntary liquidation, according to an announcement made today by E. Quincy Smith, acting for the stockholders. It is expected that the bank will pay its depositors 100 cents on the dollar.

Pope Is Greatly Improved; Brother Leaves for Venice

ROME, April 26.—Angelo Sarto, aged brother of Pope Pius X., who came to the Vatican when the death of the Pontiff seemed imminent, left for his home in Venice today. This was regarded as the best of evidence that the Pontiff is convalescing rapidly.

The Pope was allowed by his doctors to walk to the window and watch a number of American pilgrims crossing the square of St. Peter's to enter the bronze door of the Vatican for their reception by Cardinal Merry del Val, papal secretary of state. Cardinal Merry del Val gave the American visitors the apostolic benediction and blessed the religious objects carried by the pilgrims.

Accompanying the Americans were Bishop Schrembs of Toledo and Monsignor Kennedy, rector of the American College. An address written in French and directed to the Pope was left by the American bishop.

POSTMASTER LEGARE TO QUIT LOWELL OFFICE

LOWELL, April 26.—Postmaster Joseph A. Legare resigned today. His resignation is to take effect as soon as his successor is appointed. "Pressure of business" is the reason given by Legare. The real cause is said to be the recent order of the Postmaster-General demanding that all postmasters devote their entire time to their postoffice duties.

Mr. Legare is actively connected with the American Stop Motion Company and the Helms Power Company. His salary as postmaster was $4,000 and his outside jobs brought between $5,000 and $6,000 more. Mr. Legare was formerly secretary to Congressman Butler Ames.

Candidates for the postmastership are former Mayor James B. Casey, Major Robert J. Crowley, formerly of the Governor's staff, and Fisher Pearson, a brother of Adjutant-General Pearson.

MILITANTS FLEE AFTER FIRING TRAIN

LONDON, April 26. — "Arsonettes" from the Women's Social and Political Union resumed their attacks on the railroad interests today. A stationary train on the tracks of the Midland Railway was found to be afire near Eddington's Station, Middlesex, by employes of the station and before the blaze could be extinguished three compartments of one of the cars had been burned out.

A woman's cloak was found in one of the cars showing that the incendiaries had made a hasty departure. Near the cloak was a quantity of suffrage literature. Cards addressed to various members of Parliament bore such inscriptions as "England gets no peace until we get our rights."

Oil had been poured over the interiors of all three cars of the train, but the women had evidently been frightened off.

Although the police made a diligent search they did not get a glimpse of the incendiaries and made no arrests.

Other members of the militant squad attempted to burn the grandstand at the famous Preston football field on the North End, but were driven away by the police. The women left behind them several suit cases filled with oil-soaked cotton and oakum waste, several gallons of petroleum and patent fire lighters, with a great quantity of their tools. The store shed of the railway station at Huntington was burned during the night.

UNVEIL SHAFT TO MAINE DEAD ON MAY 30TH

NEW YORK, April 26.—Finishing touches on the National Maine Monument, at the Eighth avenue and Fifty-ninth street entrance to Central Park, which will be unveiled on May 30, will begin today. Attilio Piccirilli, the sculptor, notified the Monument Committee yesterday that the transportation of the last groups of statuary from his studio in the Bronx might begin at once. One figure that represents the Pacific Ocean is already on the ground ready to be pieced in position. A second colossal figure typifying the Atlantic was placed on a car yesterday at the Piccirilli studio.

Will Soon See Gates.

The fences that surround the monument will be taken down in a few days, exposing to view the marble gates now practically completed. These gates were not a part of the original plans, but were insisted upon by the Municipal Art Commission after the monument had been contracted for. The efforts of the United Spanish War Veterans' Maine Monument Committee to raise the money to pay for these gates are meeting with signal success. Every veteran is being urged to contribute fifty cents through his camp, or directly to Past Adjutant Ernest W. Larkin, treasurer of the Veterans' Committee, No. 238 Williams street, if not affiliated with the organization.

Many Contribute to Fund.

In addition to the work being done by the veterans a number of prominent persons have been invited to contribute to the cost of the gates. Some have done so and others given pledges. The contributions range from $5 to $1,000. In accordance with his pledge, William R. Hearst has contributed a dollar for every dollar thus far received from any other source to make up the deficiency of $40,000 resulting from the addition of the entrance gates. All checks should be made payable to National Maine Monument Committee and sent to General James Grant Wilson, No. 238 William street.

DISCUSS INCOME TAX IN DEBATE ON THE TARIFF BILL

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Discussion of the income tax provision of the Underwood tariff bill was the feature of the debate in the House. Representative Hull of Tennessee, who is given credit by the Ways and Means Committee for drafting most of the income tax provision, explained the measure.

Hull declared the income tax would produce $70,000,000 a year and could be adjusted so as to realize $150,000,000 a year. He predicted that the provision permitting the collection of most of tax on incomes at their source instead of directly from the persons taxed would prove popular, and at the same time assist the government in obtaining every dollar of revenue to which it was entitled.

The country is not prepared to tax small salaries, Hull declared, and he said he believed the $4,000 limit decided upon by the committee was low enough.

WILL ARREST BANKER GLOVER IN THE SIMS CASE

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Declaring that Charles C. Glover, Washington banker, is guilty of an affront to the privileges of the House by assaulting Representative Thetus W. Sims, of Tennessee, a week ago, a special investigating committee of the House filed a formal report today recommending that Glover be arrested by the Sergeant-at-Arms and brought before the House for trial on contempt charges.

DAVIES GETS BIG FEDERAL POST

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The appointment of Joseph E. Davies, Democratic national committeeman from Wisconsin, to be commissioner of corporations of the Commerce Department, was announced at the White House today. Davies was one of the most prominent Wilson workers during the recent campaign.

BOSTON UNIONS BAIL MEN HELD AS DYNAMITERS

Largely through the efforts of Boston labor unions, ex-President Frank J. Higgins and Agent Michael J. Young of Boston United Hoisting and Bridgemen's Union, who are now confined at the Federal Prison at Leavenworth, Kansas, are to be bailed, pending their appeal from the sentence of the court at Indianapolis for complicity in the McNamara dynamite conspiracy.

2 DEAD, 2 DYING, IN LINER ACCIDENT

LONDON, April 26.—Two men are dead and two dying as the result of an explosion on the new ocean liner Imperator on Thursday.

CASSIDY TELLS COLUMBUS KNIGHTS OF ROTTEN EGGS

Harry P. Cassidy, the AMERICAN'S food expert, spoke last night .. a meeting of the Knights of Columbus in St. Peter's Hall, Canoridge.

Cassidy told of his experiences in tracing dealers in liquid eggs in Boston. He said:

"The egg traffic in Boston could not have gone on but for the complaisance of some of your health officials. In the AMERICAN Sunday you will hear something about one of these officials that will open your eyes. District Attorney Pelletier deserves the thanks of every man in Massachusetts for his determined work to break up this traffic."

SANITY TEST FOR MRS. EATON NEXT MOVE BY STATE

Mrs. Jennie Eaton, now in Plymouth County Jail, indicted for the alleged murder of her husband, Rear-Admiral Eaton, will probably be examined as to her sanity before her case goes to trial. This was intimated today by an official in close touch with District Attorney Barker. He said:

The District Attorney has been pretty busy lately on other matters, but I think the next step will be an inquiry into Mrs. Eaton's mental condition. Of course, if she isn't committed as insane she will be brought to trial.

"Poetry Doesn't Mean Anything to Girls," Says Noyes

"I don't want to criticize the young women, but I think that to the average young women poetry doesn't mean much. They simply take it up as a fad," declared Alfred Noyes, the English poet, back again in Boston after his lecture trip through the South and Middle West.

Noyes declared that he found genuine appreciation of poetry on his trip.

"It was wonderful," he said. "Some of my audiences numbered two and three thousand. In many instances my audiences were made up almost entirely of young men, and that is what I like."

ATTLEBORO POLICE SEEKING TWO MEN IN FATAL RAID

ATTLEBORO, April 26.—The police are now looking for two men in the belief that they broke into the Colbart and Powers homes last Sunday, shot Mrs. Colbart to death and wounded Joseph L. Powers and Miss Mary Powers.

This search for another besides Finton Thompson, who is wanted for the shooting, is based on the statement of Miss Helen Powers, who says there were two burglars in the house when she escaped harm by feigning sleep.

No clew to Thompson has been received, although the police have sent out thousands of circulars. The surgeons now say that Miss Powers' wounded arm will not have to be amputated.

FRIEDMANN READY TO SELL VACCINE RIGHTS FOR $250,000

NEW YORK, April 26.—Unless something unexpected happens to make him reconsider his plans Dr. Friedrich F. Friedmann will sign today at the office of his attorney Carl Schurz, a contract with the drug firm of Eisner-Mendelsohn Company, giving them the right to manufacture and distribute in this country his vaccine for tuberculosis.

This contract, it is believed, will impose certain restrictions as to who shall use the vaccine, and will carry with it a compensation to the German physician of $250,000.

"PILES CURED IN 6 TO 14 DAYS. Your druggist will refund money if PAZO OINTMENT fails to cure any case of Itching, Blind, Bleeding or Protruding Piles in 6 to 14 days. 50c.

CRIMSON TRACK TEAM HAS MANY STAR RUNNERS

By J. O. JOHNSTONE.

(Champion High Jumper of the United States and Canada.)

Although the Harvard Athletic Association will have no men to represent the college in the track events at the Pennsylvania relay carnival today, there are several athletes who, if they had made the trip, would be able to hold their own with the athletes of any college.

Harvard has not had such a regiment of middle distance stars for a number of years. These men are not members of the senior class and will give Harvard's opponents, especially Yale and Cornell, trouble for at least two years. Barron in the quarter mile is almost sure to win first place in one of the two dual meets which the varsity track team will take part in next month. Even at this time of the season he has covered the double furlong in fifty seconds, and that is without competition.

He was the winner of the quarter mile run in the Harvard-Dartmouth dual meet last year, winning the event in the remarkable time of 49 4-5s. The Yale quarter mile dual meet was also won by Barron.

The three men who won the three places in the mile in the dual meet with Yale last year are still at Harvard and should repeat their performance this Spring. These men in the order which they finished are "Wyatt" Warren, F. W. Koch and H. P. Lawless. Warren is running stronger than ever this season. There is sure to be a great struggle between Warren and Lawless for premier honors in the mile.

The quarter mile and the mile are not the only events which have the stars, for the half mile is strengthened this year by Francis W. Capper of last year's freshman track team. Besides being the champion intercollegiate rifle man, he and Eric Stone and "Itay" Huling are three of the most promising half milers in college ranks.

Row Over Red Sox May Bring Suspension for Griffith

By H. H. FRY.

WASHINGTON, April 26.—It was expected today that Clark Griffith and "Germany" Schaefer would be suspended when they appeared in Philadelphia this afternoon and that they would have to watch the games from the stands for a week because of their "run in" with Umpires Dineen and Hart over the decision on Henriksen in the game that the Red Sox won Thursday.

Manager Griffith is reported to have protested Dineen and Hart working in games between the Washington and Boston clubs in future and the morning papers spread themselves here with quoted interviews from the "Foxy One," in which he placed the loss of Thursday's game on the "Umps." The true situation is sized up by J. Ed. Grillo in the Evening Star, when he says:

There is no excuse for blaming the umpires for the defeat. The decision at third base, which caused the protests and wrangle, may have been a doubtful one, yet it is questionable if any umpire would not have taken the same view that did Dineen and Hart, both of whom declared Henriksen safe.

Laporte Was to Blame.

There is no doubt that Groom got the ball to Laporte before Henriksen reached there, but Laporte's action in trying to touch Henriksen when all he had to do was to have his foot on the bag undoubtedly led to the belief that his foot had missed the base. Both Dineen and Hart declared Henriksen safe, and their decision was simultaneous, Dineen having one hand toward third the instant the play was apparent.

An experienced third baseman could not have missed the play, and it was the fact that Henriksen was apparently out by feet that led to the protest, and yet the umpires may have been absolutely correct in their ruling, for the very good reason that Laporte indicated that he did not have his foot on the bag when he made an effort to touch the runner.

In yesterday's game "Buck" O'Brien showed that he is just about two innings shy of being in first-class condition. He pitched wonderful ball for seven innings and then weakened. Hall then went in after a short warm up and had nothing. O'Brien's blow-off came so sudden that Manager Stahl was caught napping and a game that looked to be on ice melted away. After the battle Stahl was seen by your correspondent, and, although greatly disappointed over the outcome, said: "We'll get them yet. 'Buck' blew so quickly on once that I hadn't time to get Hall quite ready."

Neal Ball was on second yesterday afternoon and queries were made for Yerkes, and Stahl said it was only a case of the regular second-sacker being a little soft yet and in need of a rest. He will be all right by the time the Red Sox reach home.

Griffith Insures Johnson.

Fearful of losing the services of Walter Johnson at a crucial moment in the struggle for the American League pennant, Manager Griffith has insured him for $40,000. Only one pitcher in the big leagues has been insured for more money. He is "Big Ed" Walsh, the Chicago White Sox carrying $50,000 insurance on his life.

"Johnson carries the most insurance," said Manager Griffith today to the writer, "and the others are about even—no one being insured for more than his fellow. I hope we don't ever have to collect any of this insurance, but we are taking no chances."

Trainer Quirk said today that Joe Wood would work either today or Monday in New York, and as he is attending to Joe's bad thumb, he ought to know. The New Yorks should be easy for Boston and the wise move would be to rest up the great pitcher until all soreness is out of the injured thumb. Four straight from New York would look very sweet to the Red Sox and ginger them up for the series with Washington.

There will have to be a vast improvement in the catching department of the Boston team, if Carrigan's showing here is a criterion, before the Red Sox can hope to repeat their win of last year. In the four games the visitors have played here the Nationals have stolen thirteen bases.

They have been able to advance without much trouble whenever they saw fit and any team which cannot stop such running is shouldering a tremendous handicap. Carrigan caught three of these games, and his throwing was far below the standard. While Nunamaker wasn't any better yesterday.

There will have to be material improvement of Griffith's pitchers if the Nationals are to have a look-in for the pennant. The team, as a whole, has played really brilliant ball, but no team can offset weak slab work with timely hitting and fast base work. That portion of Griffith's staff which has not shown to the best advantage is sure to improve.

LOCAL SCHOOLS ENTER RELAYS IN PENN MEET

PHILADELPHIA, April 26.—The great Penn. relay carnival will be held here today and some thrilling races are expected. New England is represented by some sterling college and school athletes.

Greater Boston has three fast schoolboy relay teams entered. There are representatives from Boston English High, High School of Commerce and Chelsea High.

English High has one of the best schoolboy relay teams in the country and is sure to give the other schools a great battle for first honors. The High School of Commerce is also expected to make a fine showing today while the Chelsea youngsters declare that they will more than make good.

The large number of entries, including many who won fame in the Olympic games as well as in inter-collegiate events, has excited unusual interest in the relay races. Practically all the western entries are on hand and indulged in light practice yesterday. Most of the New England college and school teams stopped over in New York last night and reached here with the nearby entries early today.

The relay team of Illinois University, which appears to be the favorite for the one-mile championship, arrived early. It will meet Pennsylvania, Dartmouth, Notre Dame and Chicago. The Chicago team was also on the field and made a good impression.

The University of Pennsylvania's chances for winning this event received a set-back when it was announced that Meredith, another Olympic hero, had been declared eligible by the faculty committee and will run in the freshman race.

The University of Michigan two-mile and freshman teams; the University of Chicago one-miles; Northwestern University, entered in the four-mile championship and Evanston Academy, one of the competitors in the scholastic championship, were among the other teams to work out.

Prominent among the arrivals for the field events was Richards, the Olympic high jump champion from Bridgeton Young University. He will be pitted against a classy field which includes J. Oliver Johnstone of Harvard.

World's Champions Meet Chance's Men in New York Game

NEW YORK, April 26.—The Red Sox and Yankees line up in the first of a four-game series here today. Chance's men did not experience a great deal of success in their recent series with the Philadelphia Athletics, but they believe that they will do better against the world's champions.

The Red Sox arrived here from Washington today, where they split even in a four game series with the Senators. The Sox were eager to win all four games, and by so doing get into the race for the American League pennant.

ENGLISH ATHLETES INVITED TO SHOW IN CHICAGO MEET

CHICAGO, April 26.—Invitations have been sent to athletes of Oxford and Cambridge Universities, England, to participate in the Intercollegiate Olympic games to be held here from June 28 to July 6.

The English students are expected to compete with Yale and Harvard students in an international college meet and efforts will be made to induce Dartmouth, Holmes to come here from Cambridge and New Haven.

WEIGHT LIMIT FOR COLLEGE OARSMEN

ITHACA, N. Y., April 26.—Coach Charles E. Courtney sees no objection to a scheme advanced by Columbia for a race in the Poughkeepsie regatta in which the men would be limited to a maximum weight of 160 pounds. Pennsylvania is said to favor the plan and Cornell probably would offer no objections.

Right Off the Bat

By RILEY.

THEY Mellenized Stahl out of that last game in Washington. Jake had it packed away in his trunk and had started away when the smash-up occurred. "Buck" O'Brien blew up with a bang. The disaster hit Stahl so unexpectedly that he was caught without a warmed-up pitcher. Charley Hall, who had worked three days on his sidelines in three preceding days, was as cold as a railroad magnate on the bench yesterday, and he "had nothing" when he went to the rescue.

* * *

Bill Carrigan caught three of the games and Nunamaker the other. Carrigan was going faster and better than ever before when the season opened. When he was slower than he is now, they didn't get away with that kind of base running. How do you account for THAT?

* * *

STEVE YERKES is out of the game.

Neal played second yesterday. Stahl reported Yerkes as being "soft" and in need of rest. Yerkes was as well as the rest of the team—looked fit to the last ounce when he quit Hot Springs. How do you account for THAT?

* * *

FIVE of the Boston Nationals are on the sick list. How do you account for THAT?

* * *

IT was always thus. A bigger percentage of ball players are out of form after they get down to business than in any other business. Training for as much physical exertion. The men who accompanied the ball teams on their training trips and did not train returned home in actually better condition physically—and, of course, comparatively—than the athletes who did train. It looks like baseball is a more exacting game than it appears, or these training stunts do as much harm as they do good.

* * *

THE Sox have their first chance to climb a bit beginning today. They tackle the Yankees in New York for four games, while the Senators and Athletics are touring each other to pieces. The Senators gained the great advantage they hold in the race from the games they plucked from the New Yorkers, and the Athletics have come along by the same process. We only had two swats at Chance's bunch, and lost one of those because Keating worked against the same Keating set the Mackmen down when he pitched to them. You see, the weather's freaks and the schedule arrangement have given Mack and Griffith the lion's share of their "jump."

* * *

THE Sox have played better ball than the Senators, in the series at Washington—on the whole. If the pitching develops as it ought, they should come along. But they have already lost one-sixth of all the games they dare drop this season.

* * *

EXCEPT Johnson, Griffith is also worried about his pitchers. Mack is in the same boat. He is satisfied with Plank, who let the Yankees down with three hits and no runs yesterday, but the game Bender won was a raw one for the Indian.

Neither Philadelphia nor Washington has it on Stahl in his hurling plight.

* * *

THE Dodgers outplayed the Pilgrims once again in the same way later in the tuning. Tyler caught Smith off first. Calhoun chased him towards second, threw to Sweeney and, being slow getting back to his base, barely tagged Smith with the return throw just as the runner passed. Umpire Byron, with one of his characteristically premature decisions first called Smith out, then safe. It looked as if he was clearly out. But the hurry-up decision was uncalled-for.

By L. R. MURDOCH.

We have with us today the "ruiless wonders" of baseball.

The Phillies have come to town with a record of twelve runs in nine games. They have scored less, on the per game average computation scale, than any platoon of baseball players we have heard of for a long time past.

Yet they come here with four games won, three lost and two tied on their league list. It requires no comment to convince you that that is some record for twelve runs.

They have played eighty-seven innings this season. So it has required seven and one-quarter sessions to put through each and every one of that specious three tallies.

It is self-evident that the Phillies are not hitting the ball. But it is still more evident that they have brought along a sweet lot of pitchers.

In Boston they will find another squad of ball players who have not been slupping the bother so you could notice, but who also haven't yet produced much pitching to brag about, either. So it is evident that the Phillies are going to cease to be "ruuless wonders" here or never.

Against this corps of bean-shooters, the Pilgrim mogul has a chance to try out some of those young flingers who have not yet faced the music. It is possible that some of these youngsters may show symptoms of breaking into the big leagues. Here is their chance.

Yesterday "Lefty" Tyler took a parting shot at Dahlen's Dodgers. He pitched a rather lackadaisical game of baseball in some of the innings. The enemy pelted him hard in two sessions, the sixth and seventh, scoring three runs in each chapter. These were compiled with the aid of six base hits, four bases on balls, an error and a wild pitch. Except for these two innings, however, Tyler "got by."

Dahlen produced another pitcher who "had it on" the South Enders—Stack, who held them in the hollow of his hands. For four innings the Pilgrims made no hits. Thom they made after that were not of much use, in the seventh Titus slammed a hit to centre which should have counted no better than a single. But Stengel over-ran it and it was good for a triple. Titus being the first man up, of course he scored. That was the only run we made.

Sidelights on Sports

By A. H. C. MITCHELL

WHENEVER either or both of the Boston teams start a season badly the questions one hears on every hand are: "What's the matter with the Red Sox?" and "What's the trouble with the Pilgrims?" It is to be presumed the "fans" ask these sort of questions in every league city when the home team gets off to a bad start.

Various explanations have been made as to why the Red Sox do not win more games. In regard to the Boston Nationals, the "fans" have had a good chance to see for themselves where the weakness lies. But beyond all that there are other reasons not generally known to the public, such as the following:

Connelly has stomach trouble and had to spend the day in bed. He may be able to play this afternoon.

Whaling, after catching a fine game on Thursday, wasn't able to throw at all next morning. He has a muscle in his arm, which is ill, try to come on at any time.

Snodgrass" Myers has been ill for some time. He is in a weakened condition and is not able to do himself justice.

Titus has not recovered from his illness an ought to have a few days more rest before putting on a uniform.

Jackson's finger is still too sore to allow him to play and he has not had a uniform on for several days.

There are other members of the team who are suffering from minor ailments.

Take five men who may be called regulars and fill their places with substitutes and the best results cannot be expected.

THE need of a speedy outfield showed itself very plainly yesterday. A misjudged fly to left that was and should have been an easy one to catch was only one of the many shortcomings.

BUT behind all else is the fact that the team is not batting. The men can all do better than they have been doing, but they haven't struck their gait or else their bits have not been cast in pleasant places. There is, of course, considerable luck in hitting, but the man who can drive the ball hard will make the most bits as a general rule. The man who hits the ball hard is a good batter, usually.

THIS particular column is not disposed to "knock" a ball team because it happens to be "going bad." Stallings, himself, in doing all that a manager can do to improve the conditions. He is still looking for better material and it would not be surprising to hear at any moment of the acquisition of a player or two. The team is being handled with intelligence from a managerial point of view. The writer is firmly convinced that it will win more games than it did last year and will not occupy last place when the final count is made.

GALLAGHER TO PUSH BASEBALL PROBE

WASHINGTON, April 26.—Ty Cobb's agreement with the Detroit Baseball Club will not deter Representative Gallagher of Illinois from pressing his proposed Congressional investigation of the so-called baseball trust. Representative Hardwick of Georgia declared he had abandoned his intention to introduce a similar resolution, because of the agreement between Cobb and the Detroit manager.

WORCESTER, April 26.—Holy Cross has as its opponents on the diamond this afternoon, the strong Tufts nine. Both the local Jesuit players and the Medford lads are in the best of condition, and one of the best games so far this season in college baseball is expected.

Tufts so far this season has managed to capture a victory over most of its opponents, but Coach Billy Dyer believes that when the grog rings for the game the local Jesuit ball tossers will stack themselves up against their Waterloo.

One thing in favor of the Tufts team is the fact that they have a fine assortment of twirlers, but for all that, Red Murray, who will start the game for the Holy Cross nine, is expected to hold the visitors to but few safeties.

AMHERST PUTS BAN ON SUMMER BALL

AMHERST, April 26.—After three years of intermittent discussion during which no definite stand on the matter was taken, the athletic board of Amherst College has voted that Summer baseball be prohibited. The student body in a recent chapel vote showed strong sentiment in favor of allowing men to play ball for money during the Summer recess, but the majority of the faculty were against such action. In the official vote of the board which decided the matter the student representatives were for Summer baseball, the faculty against it and the alumni evenly split.

"YOUNG" LOUGHREY REFUSES TO FIGHT

LOWELL, April 26.—On account of small attendance at the Lowell A. C., Young Loughrey of Philadelphia, matched to spar Thomas of Lowell in the main bout of twelve rounds, refused to enter the ring. Thomas was ready, but Longarey would not respond. In a ten-round bout Terry O'Rourke of Lawrence defeated Young Smith of Manchester, N. H.

VERMONT GOLFER VICTOR IN MATCH

ATLANTIC CITY, N. J., April 26.—Hamilton Kerr of Ewanock, the Vermont champion, was the only out-of-town contestant to survive the second round of match play for the Governor's Cup in the annual Spring golf tournament of the Atlantic City Country Club. Kerr defeated J. D. Armstrong of Buffalo, four and three.

SUBURBAN TRACK MEET ON MAY 24

The fifth annual Suburban League track and field championships will be held May 24 at the Malden High School athletic grounds. The probable events comprise the 100-yard dash, 220-yard dash, 440-yard run, 880-yard run, mile run, running high jump, shotput, pole vault and running broad jump.

LYNN TEAM GETS NEW INFIELDER

Zach Erhard, a second baseman, has been sold to the Lynn New England League Club by New Haven of the Eastern Association. He hails from Memphis, Tenn., and is said to be a fast man.

TORONTO SECURES GIANT RECRUIT

NEW YORK, April 26.—The New York National League Club announces that it had released Pitcher Goulait to the Toronto club of the International League under an optional agreement.

Gallant Anxious to Land Win Over Nelson in Big Bout

By JACK CONWAY.

Gilbert Gallant, a short, well-built, courageous and clean-living young man of twenty years of age, is the latest aspirant for athletic honors to hail from Chelsea. Gallant is one of the best light-weight boxers in New England and is confident that he will gain national fame when he clashes with Battling Nelson, the noblest Roman of them all, is a twelve-round bout at the new Atlas A. A. on next Tuesday evening.

Chelsea has always occupied a prominent position in the athletic world. It has boasted of such champions as Johnny Mack, one of the fleetest sprinters that ever pulled on a spike shoe; Hughey McLean, former world's champion bike rider; Jimmy Moran, the veteran six-day rider who is still able to give a good account of himself against the best of them; Chester Goodwin and Jimmy Briggs, who were two of the leading boxers in the East several years ago.

Is Home-Loving Boy.

Gallant has only been boxing for a few years. He first won honors in an amateur boxing show at the B. A. A. and later starred in the New England and national amateur championships. Since entering the professional ranks, he has been defeated but once. Steve Kennedy lowered the colors of the Chelsea lad after a stirring twelve-round battle in Lawrence last January. Gallant has made several attempts to get Kennedy into a ring again, but his efforts have been of no avail.

Alex McLean a protege is a home-loving boy. Any of the little bright-eyed, rosy-cheeked street urchins of Chelsea will inform you "dat Gill is awfully good to his ma and little brudder." They are not in the least bit bashful in declaring that they would like to have a "big brudder" like Gilbert Gallant.

Gallant was not born with a silver spoon in his mouth and has only obtained his present ring prestige by the hardest kind of work. As a boy he went to work in a large printing establishment in Chelsea and learned his trade from the ground up.

He showed great promise as a tumbler and acrobat and made a little money by performing on amateur nights at small theatres.

"Still," however, liked outdoor exercise and started to play baseball. He has captained the Eagles of Chelsea for several years and last year he played first base. He is a good hitter, a slashing fielder and a demon on the bases.

Gallant is Ideal Son.

Many ring stars are credited with giving their earnings to their mother. In some cases this is true, but in others it is far from being the case. Gallant, however, is an ideal son and gives half of all the money that he obtains in the ring to his mother.

When Gilbert started to gain fame, he obtained two bank books. One is in his mother's name and the other is in his own name. He takes great pride in the fact that he is able to aid his mother and says that he will not rest content until he has purchased for her a house.

Gallant does not drink or smoke. He keeps good hours and is wise enough to follow the advice given to him by his manager, Alex McLean, who is one of the most successful boxing managers in the East.

The Chelsea favorite is not a classy boxer. But he is learning something new each day and as he is still young should make good in the squared circle. Gallant's success is due to his great strength and ability to exchange punches with a rugged opponent at close quarters.

Nelson Veteran of Ring.

In Nelson, Gallant will clash with a veteran of the ring. "Bat" is no longer a "headliner," but he is still the plugging, dirt-like fighter, always coming forward, always slashing out with both hands and always in good shape when the bout ends.

The Durable Dane will give Gallant a good tryout. If Gilbert gets a draw, he will be in line for many important bouts, while if he is able to vanquish the former lightweight king, he will be in big demand by fight promoters throughout the country.

The Colby baseball team will visit Soldiers Field this afternoon and try to meet better success than the other two Maine teams have that have thus far met the Crimson. It does not look, on paper, as though the visiting nine would stand a chance with the Harvard aggregation, for Coach Sexton says that Sam Felton would officiate on the firing line for the home nine, and this means much trouble for the Colby hitters.

The Harvard coach is determined to give the present lineup and batting order a thorough trial before changing, and has announced the same order in today's game that has been used in all of the games of late. The men are hitting well, but unless they field better this afternoon than they did against the University of Maine, there are some radical changes about due.

Last year the Harvard team had little difficulty in defeating Colby in an early season game by the score of 7 to 0.

EGAN AND BROOKS IN ARENA BOUT

Joe Egan, the promising local lightweight, has been added to the card for the first show of the Atlas A. A. scheduled for the Boston Arena Tuesday night. Egan will take part in the first bout of a double windup, going against Terry Brooks, the hard hitting New York lightweight, for twelve rounds. Frankie Mark of Beachmont has been matched to meet Tommy Smith of New York.

Within the Law

By MARVIN DANA from the Play of BAYARD VEILLER

What Has Gone Before

Mary Turner, a beautiful and refined girl, worked in the great Gilder store in New York.

There had been thefts in the store. They had been traced eventually to a certain department, that in which Mary worked. The detective was alert. Some valuable silks were missed. Search followed immediately. The goods were found in Mary's locker. She was charged with the theft. She protested her innocence—only to be laughed at in derision by her accusers. Every thief declares innocence. Mr. Gilder himself was emphatic against her. The thieving had been long continued. An example must be made. The girl was arrested. The jury found her guilty and she was sentenced to prison for three years.

Dick Gilder, the store proprietor's son, returns unexpectedly from Europe, because he was homesick for his father.

Demarest, Gilder's attorney, expresses some doubt as to Mary Turner's guilt, tells Gilder that the girl wants to see him and urges him to grant her an interview.

PART I.

"WHAT'S the use?" Gilder stormed. A latent harshness revealed itself at the prospect of such a visitation. And along with this harshness came another singular revelation of the nature of the man. For there was consternation in his voice as he continued in vehement expostulation against the idea. If there was harshness in his attitude there was, too, a fugitive suggestion of tenderness alarmed over the prospect of undergoing such an interview with a woman.

"I cant have her crying all over the office and begging for mercy," he protested truculently. But a note of fear lay under the petulence.

Demarest's answer was given with assurance.

"You are mistaken about that. The girl doesn't beg for mercy. In fact, that's the whole point of the matter. She demands justice—strange as that may seem, in a court of law!—and nothing else. The truth is, she's a very unusual girl, a long way beyond the ordinary ostsegirl, both in brains and education."

"No less reason, then, for her being a thief." Gilder grumbled in his heaviest voice.

"And perhaps the less reason for believing her to be a thief," the lawyer retorted, suavely. He paused for a moment, then went on. There was a tone of sincere determination in his voice. "Just before the judge imposed sentence, he asked her if she had anything to say. You know, it's just a usual form—a thing that rarely means much of anything. But this case was different, let me tell you. She surprised us all by answering at once that she had. It's really a pity, Gilder, that you didn't wait. Why, that poor girl made a—damn—fine speech!"

The lawyer's forensic aspirations showed in his honest appreciation of the effectiveness of such oratory if one be to hear on he had heard in the courtroom that day.

"Pooh! pooh!" came the querulous objection. She seems to have hypnotized you." Then, as a new thought came to the magnate, he spoke with a trace of anxiety. There were always the reporters, looking for space to fill with foolish vaporings.

"Did she say anything against me, or the store?"

"Not a word," the lawyer replied, gravely. His smile of appreciation was discreetly secret. "She merely told us how her father died when she was sixteen years old. She was compelling after that to earn her own living. Then she told how she had worked for you for five years steadily, without there ever being a single thing against her. She said, too, that she had never seen the things found in her locker. And she said more than that! She asked the judge if he himself understood what it means for a girl to be sentenced to prison for something she hadn't done. Somehow, Gilder, the way she talked had its effects on everybody in the courtroom. I know! It's my business to understand things like that. And what she said rang true. What she said, and the way she said it, take brains and courage. The ordinary crook has neither. So, I had a suspicion that she might be speaking the truth. You see, Gilder, it all rang true! And it's my business to know how things ring in that way." There was a little pause, while the lawyer moved back and forth nervously. Then, he added: "I believe Lawlor would have suspended sentence if it hadn't been for your talk with him."

There were not wanting signs that Gilder was impressed. But the gentler fibres of the man were shrouded by the habits of a lifetime. What heart he had once possessed had been buried in the grave of his young wife, to be resurrected only for his son. In most things he was consistently a hard man. Status had no imagination—he could have no real sympathy.

He whirled about in his swivel chair and blew a cloud of smoke from his mouth. When he spoke his voice was deeply resonant.

"I simply did my duty," he said: "You are aware that I did not seek any consultation with Judge Lawlor. He sent for me, and asked me what I thought about the case—whether I thought it would be right to let the girl go on a suspended sentence. I told him frankly that I believed that an example should be made of her, for the sake of others who might be tempted to steal. Properly has some rights, Demarest, although it seems to be getting nowadays so that anybody is likely to deny it." Then the forceful, half-alarmed note sounded in his voice again, as he continued: "I can't understand why the girl wants to see me."

Joe lawyer smiled dryly, since he had his back turned at the moment.

"Why," he vouchsafed, "she just said that, if you would see her for ten minutes, she would tell you how to stop the thefts in this store."

Gilder displayed signs of triumph. He brought his chair to a level and pounded the desk with a weighty fist.

"There!" he cried. "I knew it. The girl wants to confess. Well, it's the first sign of decent feeling she's shown. I suppose it ought to be encouraged. Probably there have been others mixed up in this."

Demarest attempted no denial.

"Perhaps," he admitted, though he spoke altogether without conviction. "But," he continued instantaningly, "at least it can do no harm if you see her. I thought you would be willing, so I spoke to the District Attorney, and he has given orders to bring her here for a few minutes on the way to the Grand Central Station. They're taking her up to Bursing, you know. I wish, Gilder, you would have a little talk with her. No harm in that!" With the saying, the lawyer abruptly went out of the office, leaving the owner of the store fuming.

"HELLO, Dad!"

After the attorney's departure, Gilder had been rather fussily going over some of the papers on his desk. He was experiencing a vague feeling of injury on account of the girl's pathetic efforts to arouse his sympathy in behalf of the accused girl. In the instinct of strengthening himself against the possibility of yielding to what he deemed weakness, the magnate unbearsed the facts that justified his intolerance, and, indeed, upon come to gloating over the admirable manner in which righteousness thrives in the world. And it was then that an interruption came in the utterance of two words, words of affection, of love, cried out in the one voice he most longed to hear—for the voice was that of his son. Yet, he did not look up. The thing was altogether impossible! The boy was philandering, loitering, somewhere on the Riviera. His first intimation as to the exact place would come in the form of a cable asking for money. Somehow, his feelings had been unduly stirred that morning; he had grown sentimental, dreaming of pleasant things. All this in a second. Then, he looked up. Why, it was true! It was Dick's face there, smiling in the doorway. Yes, it was Dick, it was Dick himself! Gilder sprang to his feet, his face suddenly grown younger, radiant.

"Dick!" The big voice was softened to exquisite tenderness.

Boy Rushed Forward

As the eyes of the two met, the boy rushed forward, and in the next moment the hands of father and son clasped fiercely. They were silent in the first emotion of their greeting. Presently, Gilder spoke, with an effort toward harshness in his voice to mask how much he was shaken. But the tones rung more kindly than any he had used for many a day, tremulous with affection.

"What brought you back?" he demanded.

Dick, too, had felt the tension of an emotion far beyond that of the usual things. He was forced to clear his throat before he answered with that assumption of nonchalance which he regarded as befitting the occasion.

"Why, I just wanted to come back home," he said, lightly. A sudden recollection came to give him poise in this time of emotional disturbance, and he added heartily: "And, for the love of heaven, give Sadie five dollars. I borrowed it from her to pay the taxi. You see, Dad, I'm broke."

"Of course!" With the saying, Edward Gilder reared himself magnificently in the burst of merriment, his pent feelings found their vent. He was still chuckling when he spoke, again from much experience of ocean travel. "Poker on the ship, I suppose."

The young man, too, smiled reminiscently as he answered.

"No, not her, though I did have a little run in at Monte Carlo. But it was the ship that followed me—that is, You see, Dad, they hired Captain Kidd and a bunch of pirates as stewards, and what they did to little Gilder was something fierce. And yet, that wasn't the real trouble, either. The fact is, I naturally went broke. Not a hard thing to do on the other side."

"Nor on this," the father interjected, dryly.

"Anyhow, it doesn't matter much," Dick replied, quite unabashed. "Tell me, Dad, how goes it?"

Gilder settled himself again in his chair and gazed benignantly on his son.

"Pretty well," he said contentedly; "pretty well, son. I'm glad to see you home again, my boy." There was a great tenderness in the usually rather cold gray eyes.

The young man answered promptly, with delight in his manner of speech, and a sincerity that revealed the underlying merit of his nature.

"And I'm glad to be home, Dad, to be" —there was again that clearing of the throat, but he finished bravely—"with you."

The father avoided a threatening display of emotion by an abrupt change of subject to the trite.

"Have a good time?" he inquired casually, while fumbling with the papers on the desk.

"The time of my young life!" He paused, and the smile broadened. There was a mighty enthusiasm in his voice as he continued: "I tell you, Dad, it's a fact that I did almost break the bank at Monte Carlo. And have done it sure, if only my money had held out."

"It seems to me that I've heard something of the sort before," was Gilder's caustic comment. But his smile was still wholly sympathetic. He took a curious vicarious delight in the escapades of his son, probably because he himself had committed no follies in his callow days. "Why didn't you cable me?" he asked, puzzled at such restraint on the part of his son.

Dick answered with simple sincerity.

"Because it gave me a capital excuse for coming home."

It was Sarah who afforded a diversion. She had known Dick while he was yet a child, had bought him candy, and felt toward him a maternal liking that increased rather than diminished as he grew to manhood. Now, her face lighted at sight of him, and she smiled a welcome.

"I see you have found him," she said, with a nod toward Gilder.

Dick welcomed this interruption of the graver mood.

"Sadie," he said, with a manner of the utmost seriousness, "you are looking more than ever. And how this you have grown!"

The girl, eager with fond fancies toward the slender ideal, accepted the compliment literally.

"Oh, Mr. Dick!" she exclaimed, rapturously. "How much do you think I have lost?"

The whimsical heir of the house of Gilder surveyed his victim critically, then spoke with judicial solemnity.

"About two ounces, Sadie."

There came a look of deep hurt on Sadie's face at the flippant jest, which Dick himself was quick to note.

He had not guessed she was thus acutely sensitive concerning her plumpness. Instantly he was all contrition over his unwitting offense inflicted on her womanly vanity.

"Oh, I'm sorry, Sadie," he exclaimed penitently. "Please don't be really angry with me. Of course, I didn't mean—"

"To twit on facts!" the secretary interrupted, bitterly.

"Pooh!" Gilder said, craftily. "You aren't plump enough to be sensitive about it. Why, you're just right." There was something very boyish about his manner, as he caught at the girl's arm. A memory of the days when she had cuddled him caused him to speak very warmly, forgetting the presence of his father. "Now, don't be angry, Sadie. Just give me a little kiss, as you used to do." He swept her into his arms and his lips met hers in a hearty accord. "There!" he cried. "Just to show there's no ill feeling."

The girl was completely mollified, though in much embarrassment.

"Why, Mr. Dick!" she stammered, in confusion, "you—you—Mr. Dick!"

Gilder, who had watched the scene in great astonishment, now interposed to end it.

"Stop, Dick!" he commanded, crisply. "You are actually making Sarah blush. I think that's about enough, son."

One for Father

But a sudden unaccustomed gust of affection swirled in the breast of the lad. Plain Anglo-Saxon as he was, with all that implies as to the avoidance of displays of emotion, nevertheless he had been for a long time in lands far from home, where the habits of impulsive and affectionate peoples were radically unlike our own austerer forms. So now, under the spur of an impulse suggested by the dalliance with the buxom secretary, he grinned widely and went to his father.

"A little nerve hurts any one," he declared, blithely. Then he added vivaciously: "Here, I'll show you!"

With the words, he clasped his arms around his father's neck, and, before that amazed gentleman could understand his purpose, he had kissed soundly first the one cheek and then the other, each with a hearty, wholesome smack of filial piety. This done, he stood back, still beaming happily, while the astounded Sarah tittered bewilderedly. For his own part, Dick was quite unashamed. He loved his father. For once, he had expressed that fondness in a primitive fashion, and he was glad.

The older man withdrew a step, and there rested motionless, under the sway of an emotion akin to dismay. He stood staring intently at his son with a perplexity in his expression that was almost ludicrous. When, at last, he spoke, his voice was a rumble of strangely sly pleasure.

"God bless my soul!" he exclaimed, violently. Then he raised a hand, and rubbed first one cheek, and after it his fellow, with a gentleness that was significant. The feeling provoked by the embrace showed plainly in his next words. "Why, that's the first time you have kissed me, Dick, since you were a little boy. God bless my soul!" he repeated. And now there was a note of jubilation.

The son, somewhat disturbed by this emotion he had aroused, nevertheless answered frankly with the expression of his own feeling, as he advanced and laid a hand on his father's shoulder.

"The fact is, Dad," he said quietly, with a smile that was good to see, "I am awfully glad to see you again."

"Are you, son?" the father cried happily. Then, abruptly his manner changed, for he fell himself perilously close to the maudlin in this new yielding to sentimentality. Such kisses of tenderness, however agreeable in themselves, were hardly fitting to one of his dignity. "You clear out of here, boy," he commanded brusquely. "I'm a working man. But here, wait a minute," he added. He brought forth from a pocket a neat sheaf of banknotes, which he held out. "There's carfare for you," he said with a chuckle. "And now clear out of here and let me to work."

Dick bestowed the money in his pocket and again turned toward the door.

"You can always get rid of me on the same terms," he remarked slyly. And then the young man gave evidence that he, too, had some of his father's ability in things financial. For, in the doorway he turned with a final speech, which was uttered in splendid disregard for the pocket of money he had just received—perhaps, rather, in a splendid regard for it. "Oh, Dad, please don't forget to give Sadie that five dollars I borrowed from her for the taxi." And with that impertinent remark he was gone.

Cassidy Urges Bill to Guard Kitchens

By HARRY P. CASSIDY.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has just taken a step to protect the health of patrons of its dining car service which is of the utmost importance. It is a step which I commend to the attention of the heads of your local roads—if President Mellen and his associates are not too busy to think of reform.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has announced a regulation to the effect that no person with a communicable disease, or even with a tendency toward such a disease, will hereafter be employed in its dining cars.

The Pennsylvania's regulation is the result of the stand taken by Dr. Samuel G. Dixon, State commissioner of health, who has urged the most careful examination and inspection of those of restaurants, hotels and other eating places.

To insure against any person suffering from a disease working about the railroad dining cars or restaurants, there is to be a quarterly physical examination of every employe.

Dishwashers, kitchen helpers, cooks and waiters will be obliged to undergo examination every three months, and only a 100 per cent. report on their physical condition will prevent their remaining in the service.

If a dining car or restaurant employe becomes disabled through any cause, he will not be permitted to return to work until he receives a "certificate of ability" from one of the company's physicians.

While those suffering from tuberculosis, eye or skin diseases or any other communicable disease will not be employed in any capacity where they might come in contact with the food, the further precaution has been taken by the company of barring them from employment in places where linens and tableware are kept.

Lodgings for Stewards.

That the service may be surrounded by every possible safeguard, the company has provided at "lay-over" points special lodgings for dining car stewards, waiters and cooks.

Now if such regulations as that can be enforced by the railroad they can be enforced by every other road in the country and by every hotel and restaurant.

Early in the present session of the Legislature a measure was introduced providing for the licensing of cooks and employes working in hotel and restaurant kitchens. That measure was not correctly drafted, but it was a worthy idea, and it is to be hoped that some law along these lines could not have been enacted. However, this is one of the reforms to be expected in the future.

Dr. Dixon in Pennsylvania is one of the foremost advocates of this sort of regulation in the country. His recent discovery in Philadelphia of a flagrant case of carelessness of this nature was seized upon by the press as a text for advocating the speedy passage by the Pennsylvania Legislature of a bill which will give the authorities supervision of places where food is prepared.

Officials of the Pennsylvania department have found a man who is in the advanced stages of tuberculosis, employed as a bottle washer in a large dairy in Philadelphia. It was said at Dr. Dixon's office that this man has been in this position for five years, and that during that period hundreds of thousands of milk bottles must have passed through his hands.

Should Demand Law.

"It is by no means uncommon," Dr. Dixon said then, "to find among the patients in the State Tuberculosis dispensaries many suffering from tuberculosis whose occupations necessitate the handling of milk, food or food in hotels, restaurants and public places.

"There are many cases where those employed in private houses are similarly afflicted."

This is one of the laws the people should bear in mind, and should next year demand. Sickness among kitchen employes is one of the most serious menaces to the public health.

Geraldine Farrar, Star at Actors' Fund Benefit

If just a few more people had purchased programmes at the prevailing tariff, or had been a little more lavish with the pretty girls who sold flowers, the receipts at the Actors' Fund benefit yesterday would have passed $5,000 instead of barely missing it. At any rate, the returns were wholesome enough to be called, in round numbers, $5,000.

The annual call of the Actors' Fund society for help is always heeded most generously, and when you consider the five hours of entertainment that is offered —and who makes it—there is little wonder that the chairs are all sold far in advance of the event. There was so much to yesterday's programme at the Boston Theatre that it is only possible to dwell upon that part of it which made the deepest impression upon the people who crowded the theatre to its walls. In a sense Miss Geraldine Farrar was the big card on the bill, and she went about her work with such excellent good nature that you could hardly blame her audience for reaching gravelly for every note that escaped her finely-tuned throat.

Geraldine a Joy.

Miss Farrar was one of the real joys of the performance.

Another young woman who depended upon her voice was Miss Georgia Caine in "The Firefly" company, who quietly and effectively captured her audience. Miss Norcross sang into several numbers, acted for all the world as if she were having the time of her life.

Your sense of humor was aroused by The Tabloid Hamlet," which Daniel Frohman presented with the help of a score of actor-folk now appearing at the different theatres in the city. It was a farcical "Hamlet," with the classical drama keeping perfect step to some of the liveliest ragtime in captivity. Conspicuous in this remarkable treatment of Shakespeare were Edward Abeles, Fred Eric, Daniel Jarrett, Owen Meech, Francis McGlinn, Rita Jolivet and Eleanor Gordon, all of whom died and started for their graves in a grand carnival of turkey-trotting.

"The Never-to-Return Road," a serious playlet by Mrs. Otis Skinner, was given by Mr. Skinner and three players from his company at the Hollis. It was admirably done in every respect.

John Craig and Mary Young, assisted by players from the Castle Square, presented one act from "Believe Me, Xantippe"; Miss Hornlman's company from the Plymouth contributed one scene from "The Silver Box," and the last act of "The Chocolate Soldier" was the offering from the Colonial Theatre.

The Other Features.

Other splendid features on the long bill were selections from "The Firefly" by Craig Campbell, Roy Atwell, Ruby Norton, Sammy Lee and William Wolff; Hawaiian song by native Hawaiians in "The Bird of Paradise" company; Harry Thompson, in a smart dialogue; Kan and Kitty Morton, in spirited chatter; the sextette from "Lucia," by members of the Aborn English Grand Opera Company; Phil Staffe, who forced with a piano as he chatted with the audience; and Daniel Frohman, Francis Wilson and Marilyn Arnoldi, who talked cheerfully on friendly topics.

Mr. Arnoldi, as an amateur auctioneer, sold an autographed photograph of President Wilson. The selling was not especially good yesterday, so the picture was knocked down to Charles J. Hich for $200—and Mr. Hich has voted that years if need be for an opportunity to meet her.

Advice to the Lovelorn

MUST DECIDEDLY NOT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am a girl twenty years old and am engaged to a young man, and am to be married soon. I never loved this young man, but he cares a lot for me. I have never shown him any real affection. Now I have met a young man, whom I love dearly and who reciprocates my love. I know I have acted wrong letting it rein as far as that, but is this a reason why I should not be married to a man for whom I have not the least sympathy?

MISERABLE.

YOU must tell this first man you cannot marry him, and there must be no delay. If you married him, loving another, you would do him an irreparable wrong. He deserves better treatment than that.

THAT IS RIGHT

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:

I am dead in love with a girl about eighteen, and I am just twenty. I see her every night on my way home and I would do anything to know her. When I see her I feel like talking to her, but something keeps me back from talking to her. "BUD."

I AM glad to hear that. The "something" which keeps you from addressing a girl you have never met is an indication that you are a gentleman. Continue to heed that instinct. There is no young you can afford to wait several

"WELL we're not going to stand for this," declared Warren grimly. "If she can't get up and have breakfast with us, she can do without."

"But, dear, she's used to having her coffee and toast in bed," ventured Helen. "She says it makes her head ache to get up without it, and that her mother always lets her sleep until nine."

"Piffle! If Aunt Emma wants to spoil her, all right, but she'll get no humoring here. That's all rot about her delicate health. She looks stronger than you do, and I'm not going to let you wait on her."

It was so rarely that Warren considered her that Helen felt a faint glow of pleasure at this.

"Now you tell her today," he persisted, "that hereafter she'll have to have her breakfast with us."

"Oh, I hate to do that, she'll write back to Aunt Emma that we"——

"Don't care a hang what she writes back. If we've got to have her here for two or three weeks, we're not going to do any extra humoring. Understand?"

"Hush, dear, if she's awake, she may hear you."

"Do her good if she does." What's the matter with these eggs? Don't poach very well, do they?"

34 Cents a Dozen

"Why, they should—they're white leghorns. I paid thirty-four cents a dozen."

Then, after a moment's pause, "Don't you think Carrie ought to ask her there for a few days?"

Warren shrugged his shoulders. Like the rest of the family, he stood somewhat in awe of his married sister.

"Don't know. Carrie's not keen on having company."

"Well, we're not either, and I don't see why we should be expected to do it all. Carrie's to call this afternoon, and if she doesn't invite her I'd like to hint in some way that we think she should. Would that be all right?" anxiously.

"Fire ahead, but I don't think Carrie'll take any of your hints. Wonder if I'll need an overcoat this morning?" as he rose from the table.

"Oh, yes, you'd better wear it. You're not over your cold yet."

When she had seen Warren off Helen went to Alice's door. There was no answer at first, but a louder knock brought a sleepy "Come in."

The disordered room grated on Helen, and she glanced disapprovingly at the clothes strewn about.

"Alice, it's ten minutes after nine," she said coldly, picking up a skirt from the floor.

"Oh, is it, that late?" yawned Alice. She was undeniably pretty, lying there with her long braids over the pillow and a faint pink flush in her cheeks. "But I'm so sleepy—do I have to get up just yet?"

Get Up for Breakfast

"It gets Maggie back so with her work," Warren was saying this morning that he'd rather you'd get up and have breakfast with us."

"I couldn't eat a thing if I did," decidedly, "and I'd have a dreadful headache. But I'll get up now, as soon as she brings my breakfast."

Maggie grumblingly prepared and carried in the tray. She had taken a decided dislike to this guest, who demanded so much waiting on.

"Comin' Helen, will you lend me a curling iron?" called Alice a little later. "I forgot to bring any."

"Why, I haven't any one," answered Helen, "never use an iron."

"Well, I've got to have one! I was too sleepy to roll up my hair last night. I wonder if Maggie hasn't one?"

"I'm sure I don't know," coldly.

But Alice was not to be discouraged, and with a kimono thrown about her she ran out to Maggie, returning with a curling iron.

"Oh, Cousin Helen," she called again, "where shall I heat it? There isn't any gas here, is there? Haven't you an alcohol lamp?"

But there was no lamp and no way to heat the curler except by the gas range in the kitchen. So Alice propped a handglass on the kitchen window and began to curl her hair.

Helen was furious at the thought of any hairdressing in the kitchen, but she was helpless to object.

Found Scarf Burned

Later when she went in to straighten up Alice's much disordered room, to her dismay she found a burnt place in the dresser scarf where the hot curling iron had been left, it had scorched through the linen and scarred. With a voice that quivered with indignation she called Alice, who was in the front room looking over some fashion magazines.

"Alice, how COULD you be so careless? Do you see what you've done?" pointing to the burnt place in the scarf.

"Oh, did I do that? I'm awfully sorry," lightly.

Her indifference increased Helen's resentment, and she added sharply:

"And, Alice, I wish you would try to keep your things more orderly. I've given you those two bureau drawers and one side of the closet. If that's not enough, I'll give you another drawer, but you really must put your things away. I haven't time to pick up after you, and you can't expect Maggie to."

Then Helen felt that she had said too much. After all, Alice was her guest, so she added apologetically:

"You see, we don't have the room here that you had in Dayton. These apartments have such small closets that I've had to keep everything put away, or we couldn't get around."

Just here the 'phone rang, and Helen hurried to answer it. It was Carrie, who had called up to say she would be over right after luncheon, as she was going away to a tea later in the afternoon.

From then until Carrie came, Helen kept pondering over how she could bring up the subject of having Alice spend part of the time with her.

Carrie Appeared Interested

Carrie, who was always well-dressed, came in a new Spring suit and a most expensive looking hat. She seemed interested in meeting Alice, and asked her many questions about the condition of things in Dayton.

Alice was vain enough to enjoy being the centre of interest, and was never tired of repeating her stories of the flood. And Helen noticed that each time she added new details and exaggerated a little more the horrors they had been through.

"And how long do you expect to be here?" inquired Carrie, voicing the question Helen had been wanting to ask ever since Alice came.

"Why, I really don't know. Mother thought it would be better for me to stay away till they got the house in shape again. Everything'll have to be thoroughly cleaned and all the rooms done over."

Helen hoped here that Carrie would say something about wanting Alice to spend some of the time with her; but Carrie carefully refrained from making any such remark.

Just before she left, under the pretext of showing her a new centrepiece, Helen got her in the diningroom alone.

"Carrie," she began abruptly, "we don't know just how long Alice will be here, but I thought it would be nice if she could divide her visit—spend part of the time with you."

Wouldn't Have Alice

"Oh, no!" Carrie's voice was sharp and decisive. "I couldn't think of having her now. We're getting ready to repaper and paint—it wouldn't be at all convenient."

"Well it hasn't been very convenient for us," stiffly. "But Warren and I felt that since Aunt Emma had all this trouble and things were still in such bad fashion we really ought to help her by taking Alice. And it seems to me that even if it is a little inconvenient you might have her for part of the time."

"I can't see that at all," answered Carrie, more coldly. "If you didn't want Alice you shouldn't have had her come on. Aunt Emma wrote me and I wrote back very frankly that it wouldn't be convenient."

"Oh, then, Aunt Emma DID ask you?" exclaimed Helen in astonishment.

"Of course, she did; but I didn't see that we're under any obligations to her —we've never visited out there"——

"We haven't either," broke in Helen, "but I thought we ought to try to help her now."

"Well, if you think that all right—but you needn't expect anything from me. I've always thought Alice was a spoiled, selfish girl, and even if we weren't repapering, I don't think I'd want her. And you can tell Warren just how I feel about it."

"Yes, I shall," icily, feeling that she had never disliked Carrie as much as she disliked her now.

Helen Kept Her Word

And Helen kept her word. As soon as Warren came and the could get him alone, she told him just what Carrie had said.

"Well, why in the Sam Hill did you ask her?" he demanded irritably. "I told you Carrie wasn't keen on visitors."

"Why, dear, I asked you if it would be all right to speak to her about it—and you said it would."

"Well, Carrie's dead right! If we've brought her on here—it's up to us to have her and not try to put her over on somebody else. But that's like you—you always begin by wanting to do big things and then fizzle out in the end."

Smarting at the injustice of this, Helen began an indignant——

"Warren, you know I'd nothing to do with Alice coming her. Your Aunt Emma wrote asking if she might visit us, and you"——

"Oh, cut it! Once you get started there's no shutting you off. See if you can't hurry up dinner—I didn't have any lunch."

"The Chapeau Chic"—Fetching Straw Models

What kind of a hat would milady like to have for flowery, leafy May?

What can her husband's pocket afford is perhaps more important.

Well, there are three fascinating shapes, fresh from the boulevards of Paris, which can be made up as expensively as you like, or with slight changes in trimming can fit almost any purse.

For the woman who can trim her own hats they are a boon, as simplicity is their keynote and the shapes are not extravagant.

Love's Supremacy

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Copyright, 1913, by American-Journal-Examiner

As you great Sun in his supreme condition
Absorbs all small worlds and makes them his own,
So does my love absorb each vain ambition,
Each outside purpose which my life has known.
Stars cannot shine so near that orb's splendor,
They are content to feed his flames of fire;
And so my heart is satisfied to render
Its strength, its all to meet thy strong desire.

As in a forest when dead leaves are falling
Form all save some perennial green tree,
So one by one I find all pleasures palling
That are not linked with or enjoyed by thee.
And all the homage that the world may proffer
I take as perfumed oils or incense sweet,
And think of it as one thing more to alter
And sacrifice to love, at thy dear feet.

I love myself because thou art my lover,
My name seems dear since uttered by thy voice;
Yet Argus-eyed I watch and would discover
Each blemish in the object of thy choice.
I coldly sit in judgment on each error,
To my soul's gaze I hold each fault of mine,
Until my pride is lost in abject terror,
Lest I become inadequate to thee.

Like some swift rushing and sea seeking river,
Which gathers force the farther on it goes,
So does the current of my love forever
Find added strength and beauty as it flows.
The more I give, the more remains for giving,
The more received, the more remains to win,
Ah! only in eternities of living
Will life be long enough to love thee in.

The Bad Habit of Apologizing Too Much

By VIRGINIA TERHUNE VAN DE WATER

THE apology has become a nuisance. This may sound brutal, but it is true. Not the humble apology which the wrongdoer makes to the person he has wronged. This is dignified and to be respected. But the needless apology with which we are all familiar has become a nuisance.

"I don't like to take a meal in Mrs. Blank's house," said a woman the other day, "for she apologizes for everything she has before one. It is if I am afraid there is too much salt in this soup,' or, 'Oh, dear, this meat is tough! I am so sorry!' or, 'My dear, this is a very plain dinner. I hope you will pardon me for having such a simple meal tonight.' And all the time everything is as nice as it can be, and the only things I cannot excuse are her excuses.

A woman who does not apologize except when courtesy and common sense demand it gave a dinner on the evening of the day that a new cook had been installed in her kitchen. To her secret dismay the strawberries—the first of the season—were brought to the table heaped in the centre of a platter plentifully garnished with parsley.

"What did you say?" asked the friend to whom the hostess mentioned the incident the following day.

"Say? Nothing! I had a right to garnish my strawberries with anything I chose. I let my guests suppose that it was an innovation—a new thing in decorations—if they thought anything at all about it. I certainly did not call attention to my cook's mistake."

She was a wise woman. The habit of apology, if persisted in, affects one's self-confidence, for one at last assumes a deprecatory attitude about herself and her possessions. She fears that she "doesn't look just right" when she goes abroad; she feels that her own home is not as handsome as her neighbor's house, and intimates as much; she at last gets to the point when she is content with nothing that belongs to her. And all the while her long-suffering friends pat her—figuratively speaking—on the back and try to reassure her.

"Do not apologize," advised a wise man, "unless you have been guilty of actual wrongdoing. It lowers your self respect."

Not long ago I heard a woman say of a piece of work into which she had put her best efforts:

"There! That is done as well as I can do it. It may not be as excellent as somebody else could have made it, but I know it is as good a thing as I am capable of at present. So I offer no apologies for it."

Was that not the sane and honest stand to take, and was it not more pleasant to her hearers than to have her deprecate that she had done "so poorly?" When one has performed any task to the best of one's ability, there is no reason why one should not acknowledge the truth. If one is at heart and in effort sincere, he need not be ashamed. After all, nothing is really contemptible except affectation and sham.

An attitude of self-appreciation is entirely compatible with true modesty. A man need not be conceited to be aware that he has done well.

A great artist was exhibiting a painting he had just completed.

"That is a beautiful picture!" exclaimed a friend to him.

"I know it, and I love it," was the painter's naïve rejoinder.

"What a pretty dress that is you have on!" said one woman to another.

"Yes, that is why I bought it," the wearer replied smilingly. "I think myself that it is very pretty."

Of course she did. If not, why purchase it?

The Head Waitress

By HANK

"MARIE wants to bet me five dollars that you're married," said the Headwaitress to the Steady Customer.

"Why?" he asked.

"Well, she says her brother is a philology student——"

"A what?" queried the Steady Customer.

"Why, he's a face expert," explained the Headwaitress, "a sort of parlor flycop like this fellow Sherlock Holmes. He can look at anybody's phiz and tell you all about them. That's why they call it philology."

"What is there about my face that makes Marie think I'm married?" asked the Steady Customer.

"You'll have to ask Marie," replied the Headwaitress. "I figured you were single because the bottom button on your overcoat hasn't been with you for two weeks, and I'm willing to bet on my buttonology against all of her philology. I don't believe in that kind of stuff anyway. Now you take this tall, dark, mysterious-looking guy that comes in here with you sometimes. I figured him to be a man with a awful past, a sort of geeout-I-could-tell-some-terrible-things-if-I-wanted-to, bloke. When I first saw him I was willing to bet he'd call for black coffee and slunkers in a hoarse voice."

"And what did he do?" asked the Steady Customer.

"He asked me for a bowl of milk and crackers in the softest voice I ever heard," answered the Headwaitress, "and ended up with apologizing because he asked for a second glass of water. Gee, if all the blokes that came in here was as polite as your friend I'd hand 'em water enough to flood Dayton all over again if they asked for it."

"Nevertheless, there is something in studying faces," said the Steady Customer. "When I chose to sit at your table, Louise, I figured from your face that you were an attentive, fun-loving girl, whose natural charms would go a great way to aid digestion."

"You don't need no digestion-aider," said the Headwaitress; "what you need is a license, a collar and a chain, for I never seen anybody get away with messages and mashed potatoes like you do."

"Marie," said the Steady Customer to the cashier as he was paying his check, "what is there about my face that made you bet Louise I was married?"

"A serious expression," answered Marie.

"You are a very observing girl," said the Steady Customer.

NO DELUSIONS

LOVES young dream is indeed a beautiful thing. Sweet Angelina and Henry thought it hardly possible such bliss could be theirs as they sat on the river bank in the cool of an August evening.

They met only at week-ends, for he was a toiler in the city, and he found it cheaper to live near his work.

And now the blessed week-end spent at home was here, and he could see nothing but uninterrupted happiness till Monday morning. He slipped his arm round his sweetheart's waist.

"Dearest!" he said.

Her gaze was fixed on the water.

"Darling!" he murmured again, drawing her towards him. "Can you guess why I come home every Saturday?"

"Yes," was the scarcely whispered answer.

"Why is it, dearest?" he asked anxiously, waiting for the sweet reply that he felt sure must be hovering on those pretty lips.

"It's—it's for your clean clothes, isn't it?" she queried, softly.

Do You Know That—

The people of the Solomons (the Cannibal Islands) are rapidly decreasing in numbers. Dr. W. Theroid Quaife, medical officer in the islands, declares that the decrease in population is due to the fact that tribal warfare has ceased and the natives no longer kill one another. This warfare need to keep the natives "fit" and energetic. Now they have become lazy and inert, and the race is fast deteriorating, and seems likely to die out in course of time.

EXCHANGE IS WITH BRANDEIS, SAYS MEMBER

of such engagement being in the early Summer of 1912. We do not understand that Mr. Brandeis is now in the service of the exchange.

This statement Mr. Briggs today appropriately repudiates in the following letter to Mr. Brandeis:

Services Not Offered.

Boston, April 25th, 1913.

Mr. Louis D. Brandeis,
161 Devonshire street,
Boston, Mass.

Dear Mr. Brandeis—Your letter of this morning was duly received. Relative to your request that I send copies of our correspondence to the member of the Exchange who was quoted by the press as stating that your services were "offered" to the Exchange, I am pleased to state that I shall not only be glad to do as you ask, but, further, I shall deem it my duty to disabuse all I can reach who hold such erroneous impressions as to your relations with the Exchange.

Of course I know that you would in no way hold the Exchange responsible for any statement made by any member of the Exchange. The mere fact of membership implies—does not give to a member any authority to speak for the Exchange. There exists no misunderstanding by our directors as to the conditions under which your services for the Exchange were secured.

Personally, I regret exceedingly the erroneous statements that have been made especially by the press. If I did not appreciate that you were more familiar than I with press statements and comments, I should be tempted to write you and say "I never said any such things," but I feel quite certain no such statement is necessary from me.

Very sincerely,
(Signed) ALTON E. BRIGGS
Executive Secretary.

Mr. Brandeis seems willing to accept Mr. Briggs' denial of responsibility, as is indicated in the following letter to the AMERICAN:

Injustice to Briggs.

April 26, 1913.

Boston AMERICAN:—

I think that some injustice has been done by the press in assuming that Mr. Briggs, the executive secretary of the Boston Fruit and Produce Exchange, was in some way responsible for the vote of the board of directors of that body on which comment has been made. Mr. Briggs is the executive secretary of the Exchange, and as such would necessarily be required to transmit any vote of his board. As indicating the attitude of Mr. Briggs, and his belief as to the views of the other members of the Exchange, you may care to see his letter to me of April 25, and also letter of Mr. E. J. Reynolds of that date, copies of which are enclosed.

Yours very truly,
LOUIS D. BRANDEIS.

Postoffice Inspector Ralph Dakin, who is a brother-in-law to United States Senator Hollis of New Hampshire, has been transferred from Atlanta, Ga., to the New England division and has been assigned to New Hampshire, with headquarters at Concord. He takes the place made vacant by the death of Inspector W. E. Stone. On May 1 Inspector W. E. Hurley will be transferred from Vermont to Connecticut.

TODAYS STOCK MARKET

Stocks were weak at the close of the week and in New York there was liquidation in a number of issues, particularly some of the recently promoted industrials. In spite of this both Rumbley preferred and common ended more than two points higher. American Tobacco, Reserves, was off more than six and Reece-Roebuck more than four points. Among leaders in end weakest were Reading and Union Pacific. American Can was off, too.

In the local market Boston Elevated recovered part of its early decline, but finished a point lower. That was also the loss of United Fruit. Boston & Maine was unchanged, and New Haven up half a point. Coppers were weak as a class. Wolverine was an exception, ending with a gain of 1½.

The New York market was active for a Saturday session. In two hours transactions in shares totalled nearly 230,000.

The New York bank statement is as follows: Average statement—Excess cash reserve, $16,435,300; decrease, $2,106,300; loans, increase, $16,062,900; specie, increase, $3,401,000; legal tenders, increase, $311,000; net deposits, increase, $23,686,000; circulation, increase, $3,500. Actual statement—Loans, increase, $39,174,000; specie, increase, $1,178,000; legal tenders, increase, $2,845,000; net deposits, increase, $30,073,000; reserve, decrease, $2,940,150.

New York Opens Irregular.

Canadian Pacific made the best showing at the opening of the New York market, selling at 242¼ for a gain of 1⅝. In the big American market it followed the lead of London, where the issue was very strong on Continental buying. That was a perverse sign.

The list had an irregular appearance, most of the stocks which had begun higher showing fractional recessions at the end of half an hour's trading. Among the advances were: Amalgamated ⅝, American Smelting ¼, Steel common ⅜, American Can ¼, Northern Pacific ⅛, Southern Pacific ⅛, Reading ⅛, Illinois Central ½, Great Northern preferred ⅛ and Erie ⅛.

Among the declines were Union Pacific ⅛, Pennsylvania ⅛, Missouri Pacific ⅛, Baltimore & Ohio ⅜, and Chesapeake & Ohio ⅛. Steel, Northern Pacific and American Smelting soon lost their gains. Trading was quiet and mostly professional.

The Curb was irregular.

Approves of Road Valuation.

President Daniel Willard of the Baltimore & Ohio approves of the valuation of railroads by the government. He says that it will show that roads are worth more than their capitalization, and "there is no such thing as watered stock" in them as a whole. He also remarked that it was one of the greatest tasks ever attempted.

"The Panama Canal will cost $300,000,000," said Mr. Willard, "and if one dollars the vastness of the problem will be recognized.

"Contrary to a popular belief, the railroads are not opposed to the Interstate Commerce Commission in this matter. Our commissioners are ready and want to co-operate with the commission in order to expedite the work."

Trust Rules Price of Steel.

Revision of the tariff will not reduce the price of steel, according to a speech in Congress made by Representative A. Mitchell Palmer. He admitted that the downward revision of the steel schedule will prove ineffective because of the worldwide agreement among steel manufacturers. Mr. Palmer, who comes from the Pennsylvania district in which Charles M. Schwab is the largest employer of labor, declared, however, that the Ways and Means Committee thought there might come a time when this international agreement might be broken and this country could get advantage of competitive rates.

Mr. Palmer was put forward by Chairman Underwood to defend the steel schedule. W. J. Bryan attacked Underwood two years ago on the wool question because Mr. Underwood opposed free raw wool, and said that Mr. Underwood was protecting the steel industry of Birmingham, Ala., which district Mr. Underwood represents in Congress.

Chicago & Northwestern is selling but stock shrills cmfwyp vbgkqj shdr lucm a few points above the low touched in October, 1907. A drop in an issue like this is exceedingly depressing from a sentimental and other viewpoints.

Financial News in Brief.

Earnings of the General Electric Company in 1912 were equal to 12¾ per cent. on the $101,282,000 of outstanding stock, as against 12 2-3 per cent. earned on $77,335,000 of stock the previous year. Sales for the twelve months totalled $89,182,186, an increase of $18,798,332. Total surplus increased $2,127,000 to $12,000,000 available for dividends were up $406,820.

Floods in the Middle West, it is reported by President Samuel Rea, cost the Pennsylvania Railroad Company $3,610,000 aside from the loss in earnings. The cost of replacing or repairing the seventy-four bridges which were damaged or destroyed will be $1,145,000.

Fifty-four Eastern railroads have been given until May 1 to reply to the demands of 100,000 trainmen and conductors for a general average pay increase of 15 per cent.

"The stock market," said the head of an important national bank, according to a New York newspaper, "is like a blue island bounded on the east by Bulgaria, on the west by Montenegro, on the south by Mexico and on the north by 'Tom' Marshall."

Stockholders of the Consolidated Gas, Electric Light & Power Company, of Baltimore, have authorized $60,000,000 new debenture bonds to bear not more than 5 per cent. interest, and $2,500,000 new common stock. Of these debentures, $5,500,000 have been underwritten by English and American bankers, $2,000,000 being taken abroad and $1,500,000 here. They were sold to underwriters on a basis of 92½ per cent. and will placed at 93-95 per cent.

The Northwestern Steel Corporation, with capitalization of $30,000,000, to mine and manufacture metals, has been chartered in Delaware.

Commercial failures this week in the United States, as reported by R. G. Dun & Co., are 367 against 295 last week, 279 the preceding week and 310 the corresponding week last year.

MURRAY QUITS AS COMPTROLLER

WASHINGTON, April 26.—The Comptroller of the Currency, Lawrence O. Murray, resigned his office today, having completed his five-year term. Murray was appointed by President Roosevelt. He probably will be succeeded by a Democrat.

CYCLOPEDIAS WITHIN REACH OF EVERYBODY

Here is a chance for those who did not take advantage of the AMERICAN'S great book bargain yesterday. Drop in at all of our branch offices you can get this beautiful and useful set of reference books for $1.98 and a coupon.

Everybody's Cyclopedia is a reference work that should be in every home. Every school boy and girl should have access to it, and every office should have a set on a convenient shelf. The five volumes are filled with information needed by all every day. It treats 35,000 subjects, all carefully arranged for quick reference. Just what one needs relating to history, biography, science, mechanics, literature, electricity, architecture —all "boiled down" to just the point you want. The five volumes are convenient size and are beautifully bound and illustrated.

It is indeed a rare bargain when you stop to consider it—a twelve-dollar set of modern reference books, with magnificent colored plates, full-page and double-page engravings, text illustrations, and educational charts, all for one coupon and $1.98. There is no other charge and you get the complete set all at once.

The sets are too bulky to be sent by mail, but out-of-town readers can have them for $1.98 the set, to be sent by express, shipping charges to be paid by the receiver.

American Militant Ignores English "Court Martial"

LONDON, April 26.—Accused of being a traitor to the Militant Suffragist cause, and summoned to appear before a court martial with General Flora Drummond as judge advocate and the cabinet of the Women's Social and Political Union as judges, Mrs. Mary Ford of New York has refused to appear in answer to the charge, and ignored the summons.

The three charges against Mrs. Ford are: Failing to inform the Union of the exact hour of the release of Miss Zelie Emerson, telling American papers repeatedly that the Union planned the kidnaping of Miss Zelie Emerson, and breaking a strict rule of the Union, by announcing that she had committed acts of militancy.

Who Do You Suppose the Republicans Will Run for Governor!

The latest slate and something about them will be printed

In Sunday's AMERICAN.

Auto News

By J. C. KERRISON.

Three Isotta-Fraschini seventy-five horse-power racing cars are to be shipped May 1 from Havre to compete in the 500-mile race at Indianapolis on May 30. This is the word brought back by Count Gilhooly, who has just returned from the Isotta factory at Milan, where he was sent to see what progress had been made in turning out the racing cars.

William Ziegler, Jr., who not long ago came into a considerable fortune, is the nominator of one of these cars. One of the other two probably will become the property of a man well known in the motor racing field. His name and that of the owner of the third big Italian machine will be made known in a few days.

Charles F. U. Kelly, one of the leading figures of the Lee Tire & Rubber Company, is spending a few days in this locality. Mr. Kelly visited his local branch, which is in charge of Mr. MacBride, and expressed satisfaction with the great strides that the company has made in this vicinity since the opening of the new headquarters in Park square.

* * *

Hoover Holton, sales manager of the Empire Automobile Company, spent yesterday in Boston, making plans for the establishment here of a representative of his company. Mr. Hoover says that Indianapolis is rapidly recovering from the effects of the recent flood and that, so far as the automobile industry is concerned, it has left but little signs of destructiveness.

* * *

Since the publicity recently accorded George Weidely and his home-made kingspin log drag, in connection with the work they did in smoothing the approaches to the Indianapolis auto alley, Weidely has been the recipient of hundreds of letters from farmers, motorists and good roads enthusiasts all over the State, asking for information as to the structural details of the drag, as well as its method of operation.

Bryan's Narrow Little Navy Policy the Cause of His Visit to California

The selection of Mr. Bryan to visit California and persuade the citizens there to abandon the exercise of their sovereign rights and how timorously and obsequiously before the threats of Japan is peculiarly appropriate.

The reason that Californians are asked to give up their rights in order to pacify Japan and to sacrifice their interests and the interests of the country at large in order to please the Japanese is because we have no sufficient navy, and the main reason that we have no sufficient navy is because Mr. Bryan has exerted his influence among his unthinking followers in the Democratic House to prevent the country from having a sufficient navy.

This visit to California, therefore, will give Mr. Bryan an opportunity to demonstrate to the country the advantages of his peace at any price policy. It will give him a conspicuous chance to establish his superiority in wisdom and patriotism to George Washington, who said, "to be prepared for war is one of the most effectual methods of preserving peace."

Mr. Bryan is noted for his eloquence if for nothing else, and it will take considerable eloquence to prove that war is cheaper than a reasonable naval insurance against war and to convince the citizens of California that Abraham Lincoln was wrong when he said:

"One-half day's cost of this war would pay for all the slaves in Delaware at $400 per head."

It will take quite a flow of oratory to convince the citizens of the country generally that the proper American policy is to save a few dollars in the building and sacrifice our independence, our self-respect and our actual interests as a nation. It is fortunate that Charles Coatesworth Pinckney, statesman and patriot, is no longer alive to learn from the tories of today how poorly he represented the American spirit when he replied to the demands of Napoleon's minister that the motto of America was, "millions for defence, but not one cent for tribute."

Today, at least among the Democrats of America, there are no millions for defence, but there is a pitiful disposition to pay tribute in consideration and concession to any demands that an insolent foreign nation may urge.

In Ambassador Pinckney's time the United States had about one-third the territory that it now possesses and about one-twentieth of the population.

It was smaller in men, but larger in manhood. It was smaller in size, but larger in independence and honor. It was lesser in wealth, but greater in courage.

For Ambassador Pinckney was not speaking for a nation of a hundred millions to a nation of less than half that number. He was speaking for a scant five million of plain American citizens and asserting his independence and theirs in the face of the greatest military nation of that time, and of the greatest military leader of the world.

But courage and determination more than made up for lack of numbers and lack of wealth, and Talleyrand accepted Pinckney's defiance and abandoned France's insulting demands.

Even in our day courage and conscience count for more than size. Little Montenegro is one of the smallest nations in the world. Yet all the Powers of Europe with their fleets concentrated at its shore could not make it abandon what it believed to be right. King Nicholas of Montenegro, in spite of the threats of the Powers, prosecuted the siege of Scutari until he took the city.

In view, then, of our own American experience and from our observation of the achievements of other nations reliant upon right, it would seem that the size of a country is not so important as the size of the men it has at its head.

Labor and Deserved Leisure

By ELLA WHEELER WILCOX

Labor and Leisure

BEFORE we ask for leisure let us learn
The sacredness of time—the holy trust
Confided for a season to our care.
Labor and Leisure make life beautiful
When well divided, and labor means
Deserved reward, and leisure sweet repose,
Or happy explorations in the fair
Ascending paths of pleasure. When we grow
In health, in wisdom and in happiness,
Through hours of freedom, then, and then alone,
We prove our right to clamor for more time;
But when the ginshop and the gambling den,
The dive, the public dance hall, and the street
Send sodden creatures slowly back to toil
After the ending of a holiday,
It makes a louder protest than the voice
Of tyrant Greed against the shortened hour
And lengthened wage of labor. Look to it
The leisure lifts you ere you ask for more.

THE above lines written by me have called forth several criticisms and protests, some kindly intent, some meant unkindly, from working people and their defenders.

All these protests have been made from a mistaken point of view. No one living believes more fully in the shortening of hours of labor than the writer of the lines quoted.

I work frequently fifteen hours a day. But I work for myself, and because I like my work. I have no employer, and that makes an entirely different thing of labor.

Eight hours a day are quite enough for continuous work of any kind. Most employers, heads of business houses and capitalists, who have the money-making fever, work more than that. But they also work for themselves. No one can find fault or discharge them or dock their wage if they happen to be late or take a holiday.

To be compelled to go to work at a certain hour and to remain until the prescribed time, as has already been stated, is quite another story.

I hope to live to see the time when by inventions and by new conditions the whole drudgery of the world's work will be done on five hours' time and the human race allowed the remainder to grow, mentally and spiritually.

As I came of a long-lived race on two sides, I may realize my dream, but the world will realize it some time, surely.

When I think of the cotton mills, with their deafening roar and flying dust, where I have seen women working ten and twelve hours a day and begging positions for their children (and opposing any movement to prevent the employment of children as I personally knew them to be) when I think of the feather factories and sweatshops and the thousands of other manufactories where no light of day ever penetrates and men, women and children are sacrificing eyesight and health on the altar of greed, I long to open all the doors and send the toilers forth to green fields and the woods for half of every working day; and I know the world would be better off and the progress of every race accelerated were it made possible for every toiler in the land to enjoy three hours of rest every day in the open air.

It is because I want the toilers themselves to help make the world realize their need that the quoted lines were written.

The employer's objection to the shorter hour of labor is understood as the voice of Greed.

But when the ginshop and the gambling den,
The dive, the public dance hall and the street
Send sodden creatures back to toil
After the ending of a holiday
It makes a louder protest than the voice
Of tyrant Greed * * *

I have seen a woman weep and have heard her regret the announcement of an unexpected holiday for husband. He was a workingman, a laborer.

She knew the holiday meant the wasting of his wages and the greater injury to his health than two days' work.

It meant the ginshop and the gambling den.

When an employer sees and knows of many similar results from holidays he is strengthened in his arguments against the shortened hours of labor. He does not stop to think of the thousands of women and the hundreds of sober and moral men all about him who need the added leisure to make home life worth the name.

He does not consider the pitiable cases of poor fathers who love their children, yet who never see them save when they are asleep.

Nor the numbers of wives and mothers rising at the dawn to prepare a breakfast for husbands and sons who return at nightfall unable to do more than to fall into exhausted sleep.

For every argument against the movement of shortened hours of labor there are a dozen good ones in its favor, but it is a misfortune when the laboring man himself, by his bad habits during hours of leisure, makes a louder protest than the enemies of the movement are making.

LOOK TO IT THAT LEISURE LIFTS YOU ERE YOU ASK FOR MORE.

To Certain Members of the Fruit and Produce Exchange —You Can't Fool the Public

They Know That Mr. Brandeis Is NOT THE ISSUE. The Public Knows That It Is MR. MELLEN and the NEW HAVEN ROAD That Is on Trial Before the Bar of New England Public Opinion.

The Fruit and Produce Exchange came off very ingloriously from its desertion of Mr. Louis D. Brandeis while he stands on the firing line fighting in the public interest WITHOUT PAY. The directors of the Fruit and Produce Exchange, who probably misrepresented the whole body of their organization, cannot feel very proud of their performance, if any of them have taken the trouble to learn what the people of this community think of their action.

Every man in the Produce Exchange knows that this railroad situation is threatening the economic independence of New England. A prominent member of the Fruit and Produce Exchange told a representative of the AMERICAN today that if the service which this railroad monopoly has been giving since it took control of the Boston & Maine and began its wild career of extravagance and aggrandizement, does not improve, that his firm will be obliged to cease all effort to do business outside of this immediate territory. He declared that the railroad service at present was threatening the very existence of his business.

Every man in the Produce Exchange knows that what this member of the Exchange says is true. It was for this very reason that the Fruit and Produce Exchange originally asked Mr. Brandeis to represent them in their protest against the poor railroad service. THAT IS WHAT HE IS DOING TODAY. No hope of improvement can be entertained until the source of the trouble is known and is eradicated.

The causes to which the AMERICAN and Mr. Brandeis have attributed the evils of our railroad situation have been denied to exist by the railroad management and its friends. At this hearing Mr. Brandeis is proving that these causes DO exist, that the New Haven Railroad HAS been concealing its losses by juggling its accounts, that it HAS been paying extravagant prices for property which it did not need, that it has NOT been trying to run a railroad, but has been using the railroad as an instrument to acquire a transportation monopoly which is against our law and against our public policy and is at war with the economical operation of the railroad and the giving of good service.

All these things are NOW known to the members of the Produce Exchange. But those who control two great railroads always have means of reaching individuals. Some private interest inconsistent with the general interest of their organization may often appeal to some men and railroad agents often play upon those interests. This may not have been the case with the Produce Exchange.

These desperate attempts to divert the issue by a personal attack upon Mr. Brandeis is itself a downright confession of weakness by the present railroad monopoly. If the facts which are being produced at the hearing by Judge Prouty and Mr. Brandeis could be answered or explained, little time or expense would be devoted to attacking Mr. Brandeis. The best ATTACK upon Mr. Brandeis would be the disproving of the charges which he makes against this railroad monopoly.

Mr. Brandeis did not change the New Haven Railroad from a railroad to a Holding Company. He did not inaugurate the policy of monopoly. He is not responsible for the loss of more than fifty millions in purchases of street railways and other transactions. He is not responsible for the increase of the debts of the New Haven by more than three hundred and twenty millions in nine years. He is not responsible for the increase in the indebtedness of the Maine Central by more than twenty millions since the New Haven took control. He is not responsible for the loss of more than seven hundred thousand dollars a year by a fraudulent and illegal contract between the Boston & Maine and the American Express Company. He is not responsible for the extravagant purchases of stock in the Worcester, Nashua & Rochester and Concord & Montreal railroads. He is not responsible for the building of the Hampden Railroad at the expense of two hundred and fifty thousand dollars a mile when the Boston & Maine needs money for its very existence. He is not responsible for the purchase of hotel property by the Boston & Maine from one of its own directors. He is not responsible for the general mismanagement of both railroads which naturally follows inattention to legitimate railroad operation in the pursuit of a transportation monopoly. He is not responsible for the fact that all these things have made the stock of both railroads worth in the market less than one-half their old value and have made the railroad service poor.

THESE ARE THE ISSUES. MR. BRANDEIS IS NOT THE ISSUE.

The Misogynist

By C. W. M.

FOR two long years I'd labored hard
For Moneyking & Co.,
And tried as well as I knew how
To make the business go.
I'd asked him often for a raise.
His answer was the same:
"If you want to make more money
Just try some other game."

'Twas then I met the darling girl
I wanted for my wife;
She said she'd gladly come to me
And stay with me for life.
Again I went to Moneyking
And told him what I'd done.
He said, "I'll raise your salary now
From ten to twenty-one.

"The reason why I'm doing this
I hope is plain to you,
For heretofore you've always left
Before your work was through.
But now you've got a wife at home,
You'll not be on the run,
But gladly you will stay right here
Until your work is done."
